Happy Holi-Daze Those 1040 Forms Will Be Arriving Soon

A grim reminder that Christmas is over should be showing up in mailboxes throughout Murray in the next couple of days in the form of federal and state income tax packets.

The tax booklets should arrive in some mailboxes today and about all of the 88 million mailed by the Internal Revenue Service Tuesday should be delivered within five to seven days, said Larry Batdorf, an IRS spokesman.

If people don't get them by that time they shouldn't panic," he said. "After a reasonable time they should call or go to an IRS office for forms."

IRS is mailing out the forms over a number of days to avoid swamping the Postal Service with its biggest mailing ever, some two million more than last year.

Clerks at the Murray Post Office have already begun sorting the packets for local delivery, according to Fred Jackson, officer in charge. Federal as well as Kentucky income tax packets have been received at the local post office, officials report.

The IRS reported that about 8,000 of the form packages actually got in the mails last week in the New York and Philadelphia areas because two printers inadvertently made deliveries to the post offices early.

Taxpayers cannot file a 1978 tax return before Jan. 1, 1979 anyway. They have until April 15 to file because the normal April 15 deadline falls on a Sunday.

Employers must give workers their W-2 withholding forms by Jan. 31.

Some people who received the 1040A short form or the 1040 long form in the mail may find their income was a lot different this year and may want to order different forms from the IRS. Traditionally, local banks also have on hand a supply of the federal and state tax forms.

A glance at the new forms shows they are remarkably similar to the ones filed the previous year. Most tax law changes passed by Congress this year will not go into effect until the 1979 tax year.

"This time you can probably pull out last year's tax form and use it as a guide," Wilson Fadely, an IRS spokesman, said.

Not only is the format similar, but so are the tax tables. That means taxpayers who got a cost-of-living pay raise in 1978 may be paying a higher percentage of their income in taxes.

About three out of every four taxpayers will get refunds within about four weeks if they file returns in January, or in about eight weeks if they file in April.

Several changes in tax laws will go into effect in the new forms — notably a tax credit for home insulation and some changes in capital gains taxes.

As in past years, the IRS will give tax advice over the telephone, in person at IRS offices and at some special tax booths.

During the last filing season, the IRS answered more than 17 million phone inquiries, 38,000 letters and helped more than 6 million people who walked into IRS offices.

The IRS also is training 30,000 persons to staff booths at libraries, schools, fire stations and other public buildings to help people with special needs. These unpaid volunteers also will make visits to nursing homes, hospitals and retirement communities from January through April.

IRS officials swear the income tax form instructions should be understood by anyone with eight years of schooling.

"Last year," an IRS spokesman said, "we simplified the instructions so they could be understood with 10 years of education instead of 14. This year, we got the reading level down to the eighth grade."

GETTING TAX FORMS OUT — Marge McClard and Charles A. Marello, employees at Murray Post Office, are shown here sorting federal and state tax forms, which should be reaching local homes soon. The Internal Revenue Service mailed out tax forms to 88 million Americans Tuesday, a grim reminder that Christmas is over and a new year is almost upon us.

U.S. Postal Officials Are Investigating Apparent 'Circle Of Gold' Chain Letter Scheme; Seen Here

U.S. Postal officials are investigating an apparent chain letter scheme, that, according to some reports, has cropped up in Murray.

Fred Jackson, officer in charge of Murray Post Office said today he has had no formal complaints on a chain called "Circle of Gold," which started about three months ago and has gradually moved east.

Jackson requested that persons receiving the letter by mail turn it over to him and he will forward it to U.S. postal inspectors.

"Occasionally we'll get these (chain letters) through the mails but most people will throw them into the trash and we (postal officials) seldom ever see them," Jackson said.

Chief Postal Inspector C. Neil Benson is currently investigating numerous complaints about the "Circle of Gold" letter.

The chain is believed to have started in Marin and Santa Cruz counties outside San Francisco, Calif., Benson said.

He explained that typically the chain requires any participant to buy two copies of the letter for $100 in cash. The buyer in a face-to-face transaction gives $50 of the total to the person from whom the letter was purchased and sends the other $50 of the total to the first person on top of a 12 name list.

Benson said this top name is then crossed off and the buyer's name is added at the bottom of each copy before it is sold again.

Benson said the scheme is similar to the Series E Savings Bond scheme popular during the summer of 1976.

"Aside from the fact that those who buy and sell the chain letter are in violation of a federal law," Benson said, "the majority of those who become involved in this type of scheme end up as victims since actual profits from chain letters usually reach only those who enter the scheme early."

Benson said if the scheme involves the mailing of money, a bond or other valuable item, even if the chain letters themselves are not mailed, it is still a violation of federal law.

However, so-called "chain letters" offering nothing more than recipes or the like are considered to be mailable because the items mailed do not constitute "a thing of value" within the meaning of the applicable law. Postal cards involving a "good luck chain" containing a threat of bad luck to those who break the chain are, however, illegal under a law that prohibits placement of threatening matter on the outside of mail, Benson added.

The chief postal inspector urged those who receive all chain letters "to turn them over promptly to any postmaster or postal inspector to avoid possible criminal involvement in the scheme, and to assist the U.S. Postal Service in its efforts to protect the public from this activity."

An AP News Analysis

Tim Lee Carter, Nunn, Make Up In GOP Unity Effort

By SY RAMSEY
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., and former Gov. Louie Nunn "have made our peace," according to Carter, who confirms that he will support Nunn for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

That step by the veteran congressman from the 5th District, a GOP stronghold, is a severe blow to state Rep. Raymond Overstreet, R-Liberty, a bitter Nunn opponent who had counted on backing by Carter's camp in the primary.

Overstreet and Ray White of Bowling Green are the announced candidates. Nunn has said he will make a decision shortly on whether to run in 1979.

"He (Nunn) was a good governor (in 1967-71) and we need to clean things up in Frankfort," Carter said Tuesday in a telephone interview from his home at Tompkinsville.

"...He's the one man I feel could flush out the Augean stables."

The reference is to a legendary stable which remained uncleared for 30 years until Hercules diverted a river through it.

Carter and Nunn have been on the political outs for almost a decade. The difficulty started when many Republican officials in the 5th District complained that they were not consulted by Nunn as governor in connection with jobs and political favors.

In the 1972 GOP presidential primary, Carter supported Gerald Ford and Nunn stumped for Ronald Reagan. Ford won in Kentucky.

The mountainous 5th District is a key area for any GOP nominee for governor next year, in tandem with the populous Louisville area.

Should Nunn run and be elected, Carter said, he is certain his district will receive proper attention.

"I don't care about patronage," he said. "The only thing I would say is that it should be funneled through regular channels, our county executive committees."

He acknowledged this was not done during Nunn's tenure, but added that some local officials had not supported Nunn "and I could not blame him" for ignoring them.

The congressman said he made his commitment to Nunn about 10 days ago while a guest at the former governor's home at Lexington.

Meantime, Overstreet, who privately has expressed shock at the new arrangement, commented on a television panel:

"Mr. Nunn can be beaten in a head-on primary in this state, but in a three-man contest he holds the advantage."

Overstreet said that he and White have discussed "the possibility of one of us dropping out," but his understanding is that his rival is staying in the race.

He indicated he is thinking in that event of running as an independent for governor. He has written for an attorney general's opinion on whether he can do so and still keep his legislative post.

"I know that 51 percent of Republicans do not want Nunn to be nominated," Overstreet said. "And the Democrats have sent him a clear message: 'We don't want you.' Yet here he's popping up again."

Overstreet said on the Lexington program (WLEX) it is significant that in losing a Senate bid in 1972, Nunn ran 41,000 votes behind Rep. Carter in the 5th District.

Troops Fire Into Iranian Mob Headed Toward U.S. Embassy

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Troops fired in the air trying to rout large groups of demonstrators marching toward the U.S. Embassy today but the protesters regrouped and headed on, witnesses said.

Mobs rampaging through Tehran Tuesday had threatened Americans with death, set fires, smashed windows and immobilized traffic in the worst disturbances in the capital in three months.

Soldiers also forced out and arrested 76 professors staging a sit-in at a government ministry after one of them was killed in Tuesday's protests against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The professors were staging their sit-in at the Ministry of Science and Higher Education to demand both reopening of the schools after a six-week shutdown and the ouster of the shah.

Witnesses said the troops forced the protesters out hours after a 27-year-old professor taking part in the sit-in was fatally shot as he leaned from a window to watch a demonstration on the street below.

Government sources said the professor — one of at least three persons killed during Tuesday's rioting in Tehran and five other cities — had been shouting support to the demonstrators.

The sit-in had been going on four days when the professor — Kamran Nejat-Elahi — was hit. Another group of some 100 professors has been occupying a building at Tehran University to demand its reopening.

Iranian state radio deplored the killing and indicated the professor may have been the victim of rooftop snipers "who have been firing at police and soldiers."

Meanwhile, informed sources reported that Iran's oil production was heading toward the 400,000-barrel level — a fraction of the normal 6 million barrel output — despite the help of American and other foreign experts.

A crippling strike by many of the 37,000 Iranian oil workers has ended the role of Iran as a petroleum exporter for the while. Iran had been the second largest petroleum exporter after Saudi Arabia, with most of its crude going to Japan and Western Europe. But officials say what oil is being produced now goes to domestic needs.

Last Reading On Sticker Ordinance Is Due Thursday

An ordinance raising city of Murray vehicle license fees from $10 to $15 for automobiles will be considered on second and final reading at the regular meeting of the Murray Common Council Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The hike in city stickers — which also raises the tax on trucks greater than 1½ tons to $25 — has been the subject of much debate since the proposal was revealed about a month ago.

The increase — projected by the council's budget committee to bring in approximately $40,000 in additional revenue in 1979 — is needed so the city can provide seven percent wage increases to city employees according to Mayor Melvin B. Henley.

Opponents of the city sticker price hike have charged that it is only a "stopgap" measure and that the tax is unfair to non-residents of the city.

Under the city ordinance, all residents of the city who own vehicles must purchase the stickers as well as non-residents of the city who work within the city.

A recent agreement between Mayor Henley and the Calloway County Fiscal Court — apparently an attempt to make the purchase of city stickers by non-city residents more palatable — will allow anyone who purchases a sticker, regardless of their place of residence, the privilege of using the city landfill at no charge just as if they are residents of the city.

The ordinance passed on first reading on a 10-2 vote of the council.

Also on the agenda for Thursday's meeting, which will be held in the council chambers of City Hall, are:

— The second reading of an ordinance establishing a 25 m.p.h. speed limit on N. 16th Street between Main and Chestnut.

— Consideration of salary schedules for city employees for the coming year.

— A recommendation concerning workman's compensation from council member Marshall Jones.

— Consideration of realignment of city voting wards, also to be presented by Jones.

— Presentation of the 1979 revenue sharing budget for the city.

Meetings of the council are open to the general public.

Bordenkircher Leaving Post

EDDYVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Donald E. Bordenkircher, superintendent of the Kentucky State Penitentiary here since August 1976, said he will resign his post next month in order to manage Richard Lewis' campaign for lieutenant governor.

Bordenkircher's resignation was contained in a copyrighted story in Wednesday editions of The Courier-Journal.

Bordenkircher said that he has told state Corrections Commissioner David Bland that he will leave the penitentiary on Jan. 15. The superintendent said that "this is something I have to do" and denied any problems with the corrections department.

"I have no problems with the corrections department that I know of," he said. "I have great respect for Commissioner Bland and the team."

Bordenkircher said that Lewis, a three-term Democratic state representative from Benton "stands for what I believe in." A 20-year veteran of the criminal justice system, Bordenkircher said he desires to improve the system in Kentucky.

Military Officials Say Arms Pact Won't Lead To Budget Cuts, Halt Weapons Drive

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military officials say anyone expecting a U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms agreement to halt the drive for advanced weapons or lead to defense budget cuts is in for a disappointment.

"We will have to increase the present spending rate to keep essential equivalence even with a SALT II treaty," said Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, made it clear recently that the nation's top military leaders will support a SALT agreement only if "we can proceed with the programs necessary to allow essential equivalence."

By "essential equivalence," Brown and Jones mean that the U.S. nuclear striking force must be kept in approximate balance with that of the Soviet Union — not only in numbers but in effectiveness.

Only in this way, they believe, can the United States remain certain that the Russians will be deterred from launching a surprise knockout blow in the future.

While Brown indicated defense spending would have to increase under SALT II, he says spending would have to rise even more — by perhaps $2 billion a year — in the absence of a new agreement.

"Without a SALT treaty, they probably would do more and we would probably do more," Brown said, referring to the action-reaction aspect of the arms race. Advocates of a SALT II treaty hope it will temper that spiral.

Pressure on President Carter from liberal interests not to cut social programs from the new federal budget in favor of defense has been countered by pressure from conservatives to increase defense outlays in view of Soviet weapons growth.

Since a SALT treaty would face a severe test in the Senate, where a two-thirds vote is required for ratification, analysts say Carter cannot risk alienating conservative senators on the defense budget issue.

According to present indications, Carter will follow through on his public pledge to increase defense spending by about 3 percent beyond inflation in the budget he sends to Congress next month. Defense spending in the proposed budget is expected to total about $123 billion in fiscal 1980.

Take Your Glasses To Grocery So You Read Fine Print On Different Labels

By Harold Blumenfeld

If you have trouble reading fine print, better take along a pair of eye-glasses the next time you go grocery shopping. You might want to check the ingredients listed on the packages lining supermarket shelves.

Take crackers and cookies, for example. UNTIL A FEW years ago, the baker's of such products simply listed "vegetable oil" and "vegetable fat" as ingredients. That was misleading—maybe downright deceptive. Often that "vegetable oil" was really coconut oil or palm oil. Vegetables grow on the ground or underground. But coconuts and palm grow high up on trees. They are not vegetables, no matter how you may slice them.

Why get so riled up about a food manufacturer's lack of botanical knowledge? Because the American Heart Association and leading nutritionists tell us to avoid coconut and palm oil. These oils contribute to excessive cholesterol in the human body.

AFTER HEARING our protests, the federal government ordered food processors to be more explicit in telling us what goes into the food we buy. Now the ingredients are described more specifically. (Unfortunately, though, they are still in small print.)

A generalization of the listings I found on most packages of crackers and cookies was "hydrogenized coconut oil or palm oil or soybean/cottonseed/peanut oil." When they say "or," I wonder about the proportions of the oils used—especially since coconut and palm oils contribute to longer shelf life.

With the change in the law, most of the packages now list "lard" instead of "animal fat" or "animal shortening." Lard, like coconut and palm oils, is high in cholesterol.

IN ADDITION, the dictionary defines lard as fat rendered from a hog. That makes it taboo for people who strictly observe the Hebrew laws.

Many people buy mock sour cream, whipped topping, artificial coffee lighteners and other ersatz foods because they contain fewer calories. Though these substitutes may have lower calorie counts than the originals, they are probably heavily loaded with coconut oil. Look carefully.

BREAD LABELS can also be misleading. If you want whole-wheat bread that is entirely whole wheat, the label should clearly state "100 percent whole wheat."

Once again, read the small print. Remember that ingredients are listed in order of importance. If the first ingredient listed is "white flour," be assured the bread contains more white flour than whole wheat. If you are trying to cut down your sugar intake, make sure "sugar" does not appear high on the list.

Fruitcake Coffee
NORMA'S FRUITCAKE

Repeated by request. 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon each cloves, mace and nutmeg
1 cup each butter and sugar
5 large eggs
1/4 cup molasses
Brandy
Fruit Nut Mixture, see below

Sift together the flour, baking soda and spices. Cream butter and sugar; thoroughly beat in eggs, one at a time, then molasses and 1/4 cup brandy. Add flour mixture and Fruit Nut Mixture and mix well. Turn into a greased 9-inch angelcake pan entirely lined with greased foil. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven until very brown and crusty — 2 hours and 15 minutes. Cool on rack for 30 minutes; turn out and remove foil; cool completely and then sprinkle entire surface with 1-3rd cup brandy. Wrap tightly in saran, then in foil; let stand at room temperature overnight before slicing.

Fruit Nut Mixture: Mix 1 cup flour with 1/4 cups glace cherries, 1/2 cup diced candied citron, 1 and 1-3rd cups raisins, 1 1/4 cups each chopped pitted dates and dried figs, 1 1/4 cups coarsely chopped pecans.

New Providence Homemakers Club Meets, Falwell Home

Beth Falwell opened her home for the potluck luncheon and party held by the New Providence Homemakers Club on Tuesday, Dec. 12. Her house was decorated for the occasion.

Gifts were exchanged and sunshine friends were made known with new friends drawn for 1979. Many handmade gifts which the homemakers had learned to make this year were given.

Fonda Grogan led two games with Karen Housden and Gayle Herndon as winners.

The president, Patsy Pittman, presided, and Karen Housden called the roll with members answering with a holiday tradition.

Iva Mae Allbritton gave the devotion on the subject of "Love" with the scripture reading from 1 Corinthians 13:4-7 and 8:13.

A new member of the club is Peggy Taylor. Helen Claud gave thanks preceding the meal. Recipes were exchanged.

The next meeting will be held Tuesday, Jan. 9, at the home of Bonita Williams.

Special Chicken Dishes Planned For One Person

Cooking for one can be interesting and fun if you learn to think small and... think chicken.

Chicken can be purchased in quantities to fit every family, even if that means only you. No worry about waste; buy only the parts you need and like best.

According to the National Broiler Council, high protein, low-calorie chicken supplies nutrients needed to keep young singles operating at peak efficiency. It's ideal for senior citizens living on fixed incomes, too. They enjoy not only the economy of chicken but its mild flavor and easy digestibility. And any age appreciates chicken's versatility; it can be a gourmet creation or a tasty quick-and-easy meal.

Here are a few suggestions for adding pizzazz to chicken cooked for one:

— When BAKING individual chicken parts, add a little lemon juice and/or parsley (fresh or dried flakes) to the melted butter.

— FRIED CHICKEN parts are even better when grated Parmesan or Roman cheese is added to bread crumbs used as coating. Or add dill, basil or another of your favorite spices or herbs to the flour or crumbs used to coat chicken for frying.

— STIR-FRY is a quick and easy method of preparing chunks of chicken just for one. Remove the bones from half a chicken breast or two chicken thighs; cut the meat into strips; cook quickly in melted butter with vegetables such as green pepper, fresh mushrooms, pea pods or green onions. For added interest, season with ginger, soy sauce or prepared mustard.

Working Wives Do Many Home Chores

By ELAINE Q. BARROW

Housework has become a uni-sex labor—theoretically. In practice, it's a different story, says an expert in home management.

"Studies show that men married to working wives are doing less of it than we supposed," says Virginia Habeeb, author and home economist.

A university study has found, she says, that the so-called non-liberated woman is getting more help from her mate than the wife whose time is constricted by a job outside the home.

Figures show that husbands of full-time homemakers spend about one and a quarter hours each day helping their wives. But husbands whose wives bring a dollar from outside employment pitch in only about 36 minutes a day. While the typical hausfrau averages 40 hours a week at housework, Ms. Habeeb says, statistics show working women spend 26 hours a week at it, in addition to their 36 to 40 hours devoted to the salaried job.

This topsy-turvy situation probably indicates, according to Ms. Habeeb, that employed homemakers have fewer children underfoot, especially smaller children. These and other considerations of efficiency were explored in a recent talk by Ms. Habeeb on cleaning methods. She told the group:

"Managing a home is the art of juggling. With continually changing priorities, you juggle people, activities and clutter (often chaos). Finding an easier way to gain more time for yourself is more than a right. It's the major goal."

It's basic to decide first what type of housekeeper you are. Values vary as do standards of cleanliness. It's your decision.

Ms. Habeeb recommends rating one's self on a scale she calls the "Homemakers' Barometer." She explains she had taken an unofficial poll of homemakers who graded themselves on a scale of 100 as a median, ranging from 25 percent to 200 percent—the peak, of course, being the perfectionist who "spends hours, regardless of priority." Rated at 150 percent was the compulsive person who constantly cleans, cooks and sews, and doesn't have much time for outside activities.

Descending along the scale are the organizer who can't function without a list, the "take-it-as-it-comes" cleaner who cleans when necessary, and the "lick-and-promise" person who takes too many shortcuts. At the bottom, at 25 percent is the self-acknowledged "slob" who couldn't care less.

Of all the women she interviewed, she said, seven out of 10 fitted in either the "organizer" or "take-it-as-it-comes" categories. The "organizer" is usually the working woman holding down two major jobs—one at home and one outside.

Emphasizing this point, Ms. Habeeb said "no matter what category, the first essential is to get organized. Decide your priorities. Make schedules. Then, get busy."

"Best of all, run your home like a business."

She favors conducting your personal time-and-motion studies. Wear a pedometer and find out how many steps you take and how many of them are really necessary.

Applying a business-like assessment, don't budget more time than necessary for doing routine cleaning. Studies show that a child's room should be cleaned in 15 to 20 minutes, a kitchen in 45 minutes, a bathroom in 30 minutes.

As you move from one room to another, carry your equipment with you in a step-saving basket containing cloths, whisk brooms, glass cleanser, all-purpose scouring powder, sponges and other items.

Separate household activities into four segments: Daily (requiring a quick run-through), weekly, monthly and seasonal. You can reduce clutter considerably if you toss into the garbage any piece of furniture or garment you have not used in two years. Make it a rule.

Removing grease ranks as the most difficult cleaning problem, and mildew removal is the second, according to Michael Spraggins, general manager of White Laboratories, Inc., sponsor of the seminar and the survey.

Gallbladder colic

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 29-year-old female and for over a year I've been having pain in my right side where my gallbladder is located. I went to my doctor and he sent me to have my gallbladder and colon X-rayed, but nothing showed up. Then, he gave me some tablets for what he thought was a spastic colon. I still have the pain from time to time despite the tablets.

I was hoping you could give me some information on gallbladder colic. I had never heard anything on this before I read one of your columns and you mentioned, briefly, that a low-fat diet was helpful for gallbladder colic. Could this possibly be my problem? If so, what other information could you give me about treatment of the colic?

DEAR READER — It is unlikely that your pain is caused by gallbladder colic. Why? Because you don't have any gallstones. Most attacks of gallbladder colic are caused by sudden obstruction of the bile duct — usually from a stone lodged in it.

The pain is quite severe and may be in the pit of the stomach or under the margin of the right ribs. Sometimes it radiates to underneath the right scapula (shoulder blade) or even into the side of the neck. It is often associated with vomiting. The pain is intense and persistent. It may last for several hours. After the pain goes away there may be residual soreness along the rib margin.

Now, I'm not sure what kind of X ray you had for your gallbladder, but some stones show up on an X ray and other don't, depending upon their chemical composition.

The ones that don't have to be visualized by X ray after taking a gallbladder dye. This is usually done by giving the patient tablets. The dye is absorbed through the digestive system and concentrated in the gallbladder.

If you haven't had that kind of an examination, one can't be certain that you don't have stones. On the other hand, if your examination included this procedure and you don't have any stones, I think you can practically forget about gallbladder colic.

Patients subject to recurrent attacks of gallbladder colic sometimes benefit from a low-fat diet. Fat stimulates the gallbladder to contract, resulting in colic. This is not true of either pure protein or carbohydrates.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-9, Gall Stones and Gall Bladder Disease. It will give you more information on this disorder. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Mild indigestive complaints, gaseousness and nausea are often not related to gallbladder disease at all. Many of these patients have a spastic colon. The pain caused by the spastic colon where it bends under the rib cage near the gallbladder region may be confused with discomfort from gallbladder disease.

When such patients have their gallbladder removed, often they don't get relief from their symptoms because the pain wasn't caused by the gallbladder to begin with.

Of course, the doctor is sometimes in a difficult situation because the patient may have silent gallstones along with a spastic colon. At least 30 to 40 per cent of the patients who have gallstones don't have any symptoms from them.

ARIES

(Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The best advice you receive today may come from a family member. Augment your perspective by listening to others' point of view.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Though you're able to accomplish much work today, you may be somewhat glib to a financial situation. Be realistic.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Partnership affairs are accentuated now, but the truth of the situation lies somewhere between fact and fantasy. Still, accent togetherness.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The correct answer may be found by following a hunch. Then follow that hunch up with immediate action for your best success.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) The emphasis is on creative activity and romantic ties, but you're inclined to fantasize right now. Avoid daydreaming.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Now is the time to sort out your presents and to put everything in its proper place. Make your surroundings reflect your ideals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If anything is bothering you inside, talk it out with others, and before you know it, insights gained will lift depression.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take advantage of financial openings today, but at the same time restrain an urge to part with newly acquired resources.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can safely take the initiative in planning social and romantic outings now. Others are very supportive and this brings out the best in you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Creative work will go very well today, if you will get off by yourself and refuse to let yourself be distracted from the job at hand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Make sure you get in touch with friends for a get-together. Otherwise, it will be hard to keep your mind on the job today.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) You should be happy about career prospects now. If not, there's no better time than the present to get things going.

YOU BORN TODAY are intellectual and practical. You're willing to work hard to achieve your goals, but sometimes, your energy is erratic. The world of ideas has an especial appeal to you, and you can succeed as a teacher, lecturer, or writer. Your concern for tangible results may keep you from the arts, and though you can succeed in any line you choose, you usually prefer an occupation where the intellect predominates, rather than simply attending to business.

DEAR MIXED: The gentleman appears to be a flake. Be prepared to write off the $3,000 as tuition in the school of experience. And never lend money without a proper IOU. (P.S. If you're still in love with him, I suggest you keep your heartstrings and your purse strings separate.)

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine just got her nose re-done. Abby, there wasn't anything wrong with it, but she thought it was too big. That was last year. Now she wants to have her breasts enlarged!

What do you think of people who get themselves done over? I think it's phony, selfish and egotistical.

DEAR M.: You are entitled to your opinion, and so is your friend. Anything people do about their appearance that will make them feel better about themselves is all right with me. Now, what's YOUR problem?

DEAR ABBY: You always tell girls they should confide in their mothers. Well, I used to, but no more. First, I made my mother promise that if I told her something in confidence she wouldn't tell anybody. She promised, and I told her. (It was something about a boy I liked.) Well, it got back to him because my mother told my aunt; and this aunt just happens to have the biggest mouth in Scarsdale, and she told the boy's mother!

So, please, Abby, tell mothers who can't keep secrets not to feel left out if their children don't tell them anything.

If You Lend for Love, Kiss Your $$ Goodbye

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a man I've been dating for three years. Three months ago he asked to borrow $3,000 to complete a business deal. He said he'd pay me back in 30 days.

I gave him the $3,000 and didn't want to insult him by asking for an IOU.

Five weeks passed without a mention of the money, so I asked him how his deal was coming. He said it fell through, but that he had used the $3,000 to repay another debt. He said he would repay me as soon as he sold a piece of property he owned.

A month later I brought up the matter of the money again and he said the property didn't bring as much as he thought it would, but he'd try to give me half of what he owed me as soon as possible.

Abby, I mentioned the money again last evening and he said he didn't really need it in the first place; he was only testing me to see if I'd give it to him!

Now I'm confused, angry and disappointed. The $3,000 won't break me, but I'm not richer either. I'm not the type to take legal steps to get my money. What do you make of this whole episode?

Taiwan Is Still An Issue

EVEN BEFORE President Nixon visited the People's Republic of China six years ago, Americans knew they were coming to the day when normal relations would be established between China and the United States.

There will be a lot of talk that, as Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) said, President Carter's announcement "stabs (Taiwan) in the back" and that our allies will say the United States can't be trusted anymore.

But in the world of realpolitik, this isn't the case. Diplomacy incorporates cynicism raised to its highest degree. Unfortunately, it's based on self-interest and has little to do with what's right or wrong. Most of the world understands that and practices it. Our allies will be interested primarily in how normal relations with China will strengthen the United States and work to their advantage, as well. What ally wrung its hands when Taiwan was forced out of the United Nations?

Although the United States made a commitment to the independence and defense of Taiwan years ago, the criticisms of President Carter appear to be mostly emotional and partisan. The drama and unexpectedness of the President's announcement instantly revived the decades of controversy over the two-China question. It became, for a moment, a major media event as well as a historic development in U.S. foreign policy.

By and large, however, Americans are better informed than they used to be about the Nationalist regime of the late Chiang Kai-shek, the reasons for its unpopularity on the mainland, the intrigues of the China Lobby in the United States and the spuriousness of Chiang's claim to be the real leader of China. The political fate of his successors isn't as deep a concern in this country as his own was at the beginning of the Nationalists' flight to Taiwan.

THE BEST HOPE for a peaceful settlement of the Taiwan problem is that the present government of the People's Republic is too involved in internal development, especially industrial growth, to feel the need to assert itself over the Nationalists.

But, if the mainland leaders rearranged their priorities and began making moves toward the physical takeover of Taiwan, the United States would have to rethink its decision about normalizing relations.

The process that led to Carter's announcement has been a long one, involving painstaking negotiations by both Presidents Nixon and Ford. Carter continued the momentum by sending his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, to China last May. Other high-level diplomatic visits followed.

The end result of all diplomatic relations, however, had seemed inevitable for a long time. It made little sense for two of the most powerful nations in the world not to talk to each other on a regular, formal basis. The change only waited on the emergency of a new leadership after the death of Mao Tse-tung and on China's determination, in its own interests, to develop closer economic and political ties with the rest of the world.

Normal relations will give this country a huge new market, a potentially major source of oil, and a political partnership that could be of historic value in its dealings with both the Soviet Union and the nations of the Third World. China, in turn, would gain the advantage of U.S. goods and technical help, which it must have for industrial development.

In view of all these and other factors, the two countries would seem to be moving in a direction that will benefit each and promote world peace. But there is a sticking point.

Is the People's Republic willing to let the Taiwan question drift while it concentrates on more pressing interests?

The President said the Chinese government had assured him that Taiwan would be allowed to maintain its economic and social systems. But administration sources said no explicit guarantees had been given that military force wouldn't be used against Taiwan. And, even if no economic or social changes are sought by the People's Republic, what about political changes? Will there be demands for an overlord from the mainland or some level of military occupation?

THE UNITED STATES must keep in mind two major considerations. First, this country shouldn't trust China any more than it does the Soviet Union. We don't know everything that went into the agreement that Carter announced — what the fine print is or whether any side agreements were made. Congress and the public have every reason to be skeptical, at least until all the details are known and fully debated.

Second, if the People's Republic can't resist the impulse or decides for whatever reason to attempt a military takeover of Taiwan, that would be too high a price for the United States to pay for an exchange of ambassadors and the benefits, large as they are, that would follow.

FBI Investigates 'Monster' In New Orleans Federal Jobs

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Millions of federal dollars earmarked for the battle against unemployment have been wasted and otherwise misspent here in the chaos resulting from years of bad management.

The FBI is currently supervising an investigation into payroll fraud, embezzlement and political abuse in the federal jobs program in New Orleans. The agent in charge says he has uncovered a "monster."

And the city has been put on notice to improve its performance or risk losing some of the $24 million it is to receive this year under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Now, the Labor Department is demanding that New Orleans return $6.1 million in CETA money that apparently was misspent, according to federal documents obtained by The Associated Press.

Investigators who have examined CETA here say New Orleans' program provides a chronicle of the problems that afflict CETA nationally. Some 475 local governments run a variety of federal CETA programs, and New Orleans is one of 51 rated as having "serious problems."

Thus, local CETA abuse involves more than bad bookkeeping. Consider: — New Orleans had to pay $50,000 of its own to the Labor Department last March for CETA funds that the department said was misspent by the Urban League and the Opportunities Industrialization Center.

— OIC, a Philadelphia-based, nationwide jobs training organization, spent two out of every five CETA dollars for administration, twice what the law allows, according to federal officials.

— Although the Labor Department gave the city an extra $1.5 million last summer to save 1,000 CETA jobs, an AP investigation found that New Orleans reported an $800,000 surplus in that category this fall.

— A mere half-dozen city employees have monitored $100 million in CETA funds since the program began in 1974. They say their task dwarfed the time they could spend on it.

— Of the 1,196 individuals who had gone through the city's CETA training program by February, 1977, only 42 of them — or 4 percent — had found jobs. The cost per placement was $65,544 per participant, according to a Labor Department calculation.

— Federal officials say that priests, nuns and teachers on summer vacation were enrolled in a program for the hard-core unemployed.

Today, the CETA program is entrusted with only a few months' funds at a time.

What went wrong? Henry Braden IV, New Orleans' first manpower director and now a state senator, says the city was ill-equipped to handle the huge sums of money available when CETA funds started flowing in 1974.

One state official said "there are too many political groups that have an influence on the city administration." In Washington, CETA field operations chief Don Balcer agreed: "I would say it's the way they do business in Louisiana."

At bottom, though, there was raging mismanagement — that allowed problems to fester and erupt eventually into scandal. The single federal representative couldn't monitor the whole city effectively, and even if he could, his threats were seen as empty.

A number of present and former Dallas-based Labor Department officials say they feel that their superiors wanted to bridge their efforts to get tough with New Orleans and delayed reform.

For all the potential abuses, no one accepts the responsibility to root out corruption. Not Harris, not U.S. Attorney John Volz, not the FBI, not Mayor Ernest Morial, not District Attorney Harry Connick, not Police Chief James Parsons.

"We can't go out looking for investigations to conduct," said Connick. Added Volz: "What you find is so much mismanagement that the mismanagement itself makes it difficult to uncover abuse."

Chief Parsons says the district attorney is playing politics by refusing to seek indictments in the alleged use of CETA workers in a political campaign waged by Sen. Braden. Braden denies any knowledge of the alleged practice, and Connick says he resents Parsons' charge.

To date, there have been only four misdemeanor convictions and one felony conviction, all from the same small case, in the New Orleans CETA program.

But the FBI is poring over a roomful of records involving payroll fraud, embezzlement and the campaign case. "We found out we had a monster," says Robert Isakson, head of the FBI's local white-collar crime unit.

One FBI probe involves $615,000 that, in Isakson's words, "went down the tubes" for a special street clean-up program.

The program was funded by Total Community Action, a nonprofit anti-poverty agency that also is responsible for the $6.1-million blunder for which Washington wants reimbursement. This incident concerns the illegal mixing of money from one program to another between June 1975 and September 1976, a practice TCA says it has stopped.

TCA, which is running more than $5 million worth of the city's CETA program this year, also is under investigation for having skimmed funds from another federal contract. But Morial said he had wanted the agency to continue with CETA because the city doesn't have a replacement to run TCA's job training efforts.

City CETA director Sandra N. Gunner has taken steps to improve financial controls, bolstering her monitoring staff and requiring sub-contractors to account for expenses and enrollments monthly.

Yet, she said she didn't even know about the $50,000 problem involving the Urban League and OIC. Also, repeated requests that her office pinpoint the number of current CETA jobs in New Orleans failed to elicit a more precise figure than 2,000 to 3,000.

Says an aide to Labor Secretary Ray Marshall: "I'm under the impression that the New Orleans people are trying to patch things up. I'm also under the impression that the situation defies a quick fix."

Letter To The Editor

More Objections Raised To City Sticker Increase

Dear Editor:

We are aware that the Murray City Council is mainly concerned with affairs and growth of the city of Murray, but the taxpayer is naturally concerned with financial living standards and welfare of our individual families.

We were agitated to pay $10 and $15 for city stickers in 1978, and will be highly agitated if stickers increase by one-third in 1979.

That is an increase of 33 and one-third percent in taxation and if every phase of taxation increases this amount, while we are cautioned to remain within guidelines set by President Carter of seven percent maximum increase in wages, then we are left with no alternative but to believe that "Government of the people, by the people and for the people," has no meaning today.

We consider this increase unfair and burdensome especially since there are no benefits for some forced to purchase it. Some have their own leaves, trash pickup, city taxes, etc., to maintain and do not feel responsible for Murray's Sanitation, etc.

Increasing costs of services rendered should be substantial to cover wage increases.

Maybe some pointers could be taken as to how others have purchased a new fire truck and maintenance of same. As has been quoted previously, "There are other options which should be considered," and that doesn't mean payroll taxation, either, as threatened recently.

The deductions from our payroll are already excessive and we are determined that our payroll or take-home pay is not threatened further. We are plagued with so many petty taxes, licenses, and fees other than state, local and federal that it's not hard to see why so many are repeating, "Taxation without representation."

It is evident our officials in government have no intention of staying within any guidelines whatsoever and shall continue extravagant spending. We also have the feeling our officials in government are no longer servants or representatives of the people but the people are slaves to taxation.

Let us make one think perfectly clear: We the undersigned personnel and employees want to stress that this letter doesn't necessarily reflect the feeling of management or the organization by which we are employed, as was misinterpreted when others revealed opposition to city sticker increases for 1979; nor is this letter intended to be a personal insult to Mayor Henley; nor do we object to the goals of the city of Murray and employees.

But we would appreciate the council giving serious thought to consider other ways of obtaining these goals for the city of Murray.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The above letter was signed by 65 employees of Murray-Calloway County Hospital and is on file at the offices of this newspaper. In the interest of conserving space, the individual names are not being published.)

Bible Thought

Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions. — Psalm 25:7.

Teen-age delinquents lay up a burden of sin. Let them return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon them; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon: You do not need to be old to be good.

Novices Should Beware Of Firewood Purchase

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — If you've just moved into a house or apartment with a fireplace and you've never before bought wood, beware. It's easy to get burned.

Wood is an expensive commodity these days, with a medium-sized load usually costing from $25-$40, but some kinds of wood may cost as much as $70. The purchase price generally includes delivery, but you may be able to get it for less if you haul it yourself.

Obviously, the cheapest way to get firewood is to have access to property where you can chop fallen trees. If you don't, you'll have to find a supplier.

Like any other service, one way of getting what you pay for is to buy from someone who's been recommended by a friend, or who has a good reputation in your community.

But if you don't know anyone who's bought a load of firewood recently, you'll have to rely on advertising placed by the suppliers themselves.

Then your only protection is to know something about what you're ordering, so you can make sure they deliver what they promised.

Firewood is measured by a different standard than the usual pounds or feet. Loads of wood come in ricks and cords, three-quarter-ton loads or truckfuls. The wood is hard, soft or mixed. It may be dry, seasoned or green.

How do you know what you're getting?

A rick is similar to a cord, but not as wide. Ricks and cords are supposed to be piles of wood eight-feet-long by four-feet-high, with ricks containing logs about two feet long, and cords four feet long.

But that's more or less, and your best bet is to ask the seller for his definition of cord or rick.

A three-quarter-ton truck generally carries somewhere between a cord and a rick.

Apart from the size of the load, the key question is whether the wood will burn. You should ask if it's dry, seasoned wood. Green wood simply won't burn well.

Seasoned wood begins to develop cracks or splits along the grain, which you can spot by looking at the ends of logs. However, some freshly chopped wood won't show the splitting, although it may be dry. But don't just assume that that's the case.

Logs that have been split dry faster, burn more easily, and are easier to handle than whole logs, which can be extremely heavy.

Wood can be stored outside, but should be covered with heavy plastic to protect it from the weather.

Next week: your fireplace.

Louisville Aldermen Locked In Court Fight Over Mayor's Conduct

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Louisville Board of Aldermen are locked in a court fight over an investigation of Mayor William Stansbury's conduct in office, and one board member said that a majority of the panel would like the mayor to leave office.

Alderman Mary Margaret Mulvihill says that a poll she conducted among the other 11 members of the panel indicates that a majority are in favor of Stansbury leaving office.

Mrs. Mulvihill said Tuesday that she conducted the poll during the Christmas holidays, and found that "a majority on the board feels the mayor should go, but the big questions is how?"

She said that it would probably be "a total waste of time" for a delegation to ask the mayor to step down, and any effort by the board to impeach the mayor would probably be thrown into the courts, just as is the board's current attempt to investigate the mayor's conduct in office.

The controversy over Stansbury began last summer when he admitted lying about his whereabouts during a crisis in the city firefighters' strike. The matter widened last week after allegations linking Stansbury to illegal fund-raising for his mayoral campaign. Stansbury's office has said that all contributions to the mayor's 1977 campaign were properly reported.

Mrs. Mulvihill, saying that "I strongly feel that this board can't let this die," said about all the panel could do at the present time is monitor a federal grand jury investigation into the fund-raising allegations.

She also said that she may contact Louisville business leaders to determine if they believe that Stansbury should leave office.

Mrs. Mulvihill refused to discuss details of her poll, and also refused to say how individual board members lean on the Stansbury question.

She did say that some aldermen want more evidence of wrongdoing in office before tackling the impeachment question. They want "the smoking gun", Mrs. Mulvihill said.

Committee Urges Start Of Surgeons' Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress should consider legislation to develop minimum competency standards for physicians performing surgery, according to a congressional subcommittee that says it is "appalled at the amount of evidence of incompetent as well as unnecessary surgery."

The report released Tuesday by the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce's oversight and investigations subcommittee said state licensing agencies, medical societies and professional standard review organizations are all failing to take appropriate steps to curb unnecessary or incompetent surgery.

The subcommittee estimated that about 2 million unnecessary surgical procedures were performed in 1977, costing over $4 billion and resulting in the deaths of over 10,000 people.

Funeral Services Set For Former Ashland Newspaperman

MT. STERLING, Ky. (AP) — Graveside funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday for veteran newspaperman Loy Allen, a former city editor of the Ashland Daily Independent.

Allen, 80, of Los Angeles, died Friday following an extended illness.

He left the Independent in 1942 and later worked in the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner sports department.

The services will be at Machpelah Cemetery in Mt. Sterling, with burial to follow in the same cemetery, a spokesman for Herald and Stewart Home for Funerals in Mt. Sterling said Tuesday.

PROJECT INDEPENDENCE

What is Project Independence?

Project Independence is a demonstration project for the elderly in the Jackson Purchase. It is designed to help older persons remain in their own homes as an alternative to entering institutional facilities.

Who is eligible?

Persons who:

1. Are age 60 or older, AND

2. Need services to remain in their homes (such as household chores, meals, health needs, transportation and others), AND

3. Can not get the services from any other source.

If you have questions, about Project Independence call Bonnie Ashby at 753-5362.

Taiwan Protestors Greet U.S. Diplomatic-Military Delegates

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — At least 10,000 protesters flinging eggs and mud and shouting "Carter is a cheat!" greeted a U.S. delegation today as it arrived to begin talks with Taiwan officials aimed at making the separation of the two nations an amicable one.

Vice Foreign Minister Frederick Chien sounded a stern note in a welcoming speech for the diplomatic-military delegation at a military airport, telling the Americans that the economic and cultural ties the Carter administration wants to retain with Taiwan can be continued only on a government-to-government basis.

As the delegation and Nationalist Chinese officials left the airport, accompanied by carloads of reporters, demonstrators waved the Nationalist flag of Taiwan and lunged at the automobiles, beating on the sides, throwing eggs and mud and striking the cars with flagpoles.

One man rushed up to a reporters' car and stuffed a muddied, torn American flag in through a window. Demonstrators splashed red paint on one limousine carrying American officials.

Signs denounced President Carter's decision earlier this month to sever diplomatic ties with Taiwan and establish them with communist China.

Police were able to hold back many in the angry crowd. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

Another crowd of 1,000 to 2,000 demonstrators gathered in front of Taipei's Grand

Covington Man Is Held In Jail For Shooting Of Wife

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Howard Barker of Covington was held in the Kenton County Jail pending disposition of a charge of murder in connection with the shooting death of his former wife Billie Barker, 36, on Wednesday.

Police Specialist Larry Israel said Mrs. Barker was shot once in the back as she packed belongings while preparing to move out of her former husband's home.

Israel said Mrs. Barker's daughters were playing in the basement of the house at the time of the shooting. The body was found in the family room.

The couple was divorced three months ago. Police said the furniture had been removed from the home and family furnishings were being packed when the shooting occurred.

Israel said Christmas wrappings littered the empty rooms.

MURALS

DALLAS (AP) — Two Peter Hurd murals will be left behind when the Postal Service moves out of the Old Terminal annex here after 41 years, but their future will not be in jeopardy.

The federal government's house-keeping agency, the General Services Administration, has first option on the building and plans to protect the paintings.

The federal government commissioned Hurd, a widelyknown Western artist, to paint the murals 40 years ago.

The larger mural shows pioneers building a log cabin and the smaller one depicts a house, windmill and mailbox.

...THE NEWS IN BRIEF...

By The Associated Press
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Troops fired automatic weapons in the air trying to rout mobs of anti-shah demonstrators marching toward the U.S. Embassy today but the protesters regrouped and headed in other directions, witnesses said.

Heavy bursts of gunfire shook the downtown area, and pedestrians fled for shelter in office buildings. On one street, some 500 protesters set fire to heaps of tires, blocking traffic and enveloping a yellow Fiat in flames.

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — It was a marital tiff punctuated by violence, ending when the couple kissed and made love, says John Rideout.

It was rape, says his 23-year-old wife, Greta.

The couple, in what is believed to be the first criminal prosecution of a husband on a charge of raping his wife, testified Tuesday before a Marion County Circuit Court jury — telling of events at their Salem apartment Oct. 10.

Closing arguments were scheduled for today.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An order to integrate Oakland's fire department by hiring two minority members for each new white is unconstitutional in view of the U.S. Supreme Court's Bakke decision, a state appeals court has ruled.

The Court of Appeal on Tuesday reversed a ruling by Alameda County Superior Court Judge Robert Barber that set ratios for minority promotions and hiring and threw out promotion tests.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time is running out on the internal combustion engine and a joint government-industry effort like that which sent men to the moon may be necessary to develop the automobile of the future, says Transportation Secretary Brock Adams.

And because of the deteriorating world petroleum situation, a replacement for conventional auto engines must be found within the next decade, Adams said in an interview.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military officials say anyone expecting a U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms agreement to halt the drive for advanced weapons or lead to defense budget cuts is in for a disappointment.

"We will have to increase the present spending rate to keep essential equivalence even with a SALT II treaty," said Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Algerian President Houari Boumedienne, a fiery pillar of Third World radicalism, died today, Algerian state radio announced. The 53-year-old president suffered from a rare blood disease and had lain in a coma for 40 days.

Boumedienne had been kept alive at Algiers' Mustafa Hospital by life-support systems tended by top physicians from the United States, Europe, Cuba and the Soviet Union. The broadcast said he died at 3:55 a.m. (9:55 p.m. Tuesday EST.)

Human Development May Be Linked To Genes, U Of L Researchers Claim

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — University of Louisville researchers say they have strong evidence that links stages of human development with hereditary genes.

A 10-year study of 374 sets of twins born at Louisville hospitals shows that genes determine when an individual develops and in what ways, according to an article recently published in Science, the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The article was written by Ronald S. Wilson, a professor of pediatrics at the university. The study measured the mental development of twins by testing the children every three months in their first year, every six months in the second and third years, and annually in the fourth, fifth and sixth years.

Both identical twins (twins conceived from the same egg, which splits and creates two fetuses who share identical genes) and fraternal twins (twins conceived from two eggs fertilized at the same time but with separate development) were studied.

Wilson said in the article that what psychologists call "mental development" is not the same as intelligence at such early ages.

The tests given to the youngest children, for instance, measured how well the brain controlled muscles, and the alertness of the children's senses.

Some identical twins started off on unequal terms, but inner programming of the genes, the study reported, caused development to coincide several years later.

For example, because of positioning in the womb one fetus may have received more nutrition and may have been heavier, thus more developed at birth. However, the scores show that while the smaller twin started out at a disadvantage, at the end of six years test scores were close.

In identical twins with the same birth weight, test scores were comparable through the period. Surprisingly, when one twin's test scores fell, the other twin's scores also fell, the study states.

These patterns didn't appear in the scores of fraternal twins, however.

Although the fraternal twins shared the same mother, the same gestation period and the same home environment, the study reported that fraternal twins had divergent scores.

After age 2, Wilson said, children seem to enter a stage of development in which they are able to symbolize things and store past experiences in memory. From these memories, a present problem can be compared to past experience in seeking answers.

"Such recollections gradually create a sense of what is constant and what is permanent among the attributes of the physical world," Wilson said.

These inner programming traits are common to all humans, according to the study.

Paducah McCracken Taxes Differ

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — Property taxes will be slightly decreased in the city of Paducah this year, while property owners in McCracken County will notice a slight tax increase.

The City Commission has approved rates totaling $0.44 cents for each $100 of assessed property. This is 1.76 cents less than the 1977 rate.

The Paducah Board of Education has approved a general fund tax rate of 38.1 cents per $100 of assessed property value and a special building fund rate of 13 cents per $100. The general fund rate is 0.2 cent higher than the 1977 rate, which makes the net decrease for taxpayers within the city school district 1.56 cents per $100.

The McCracken Fiscal Court has approved rates totaling 20.2 cents per $100 of assessed property, an increase of 0.1 cent from the 1977 rate. The McCracken County Board of Education has approved a tax rate of 14.2 cents, an increase of 0.1 cent, which would make the total increase for county residents 0.2 cent.

Legislator Says Session Better For Some Tax Issues

WINCHESTER, Ky. (AP) — The vice chairman of the Kentucky Legislature's Election and Constitutional Amendment Committee, Paul Richardson, says the special legislative session next month will be able to deal more effectively with Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall's tax proposals than a regular session could.

The Winchester Democratic representative said in an interview Tuesday one reason for this is because the special session will not have the same political pressures from assembly committees that a regular session would.

He also said the lieutenant governor has been lax in not recommending where the state budget can be trimmed. Richardson said the Appropriations and Revenue Committee, which controls the state budget, has asked Mrs. Stovall twice to appear before the committee to say where the tax cuts she proposes could be made, but she has not yet done so.

Virginia Police Release Details

POUND, Va. (AP) — State police in Virginia have released details of a traffic accident Saturday near Pound in which two Kentucky men died.

The report says the victims of the accident, in which a truck overturned and burst, were 19-year-old Archie Lewis and 25-year-old Gary Owens, both of Cumberland.

In 1949, Burma became the first non-Communist country to recognize the Chinese Communist regime in Peking.

Cambodia Opens Its Famous Angkor Wat Temple Today

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

ANGKOR, Cambodia (AP) — Communist Cambodia today reopened the temple of Angkor Wat to foreigners barred from viewing the ancient masterpieces by eight years of war and revolution.

No major war damage to the ancient complex was apparent but neither was there any evidence of restoration and maintenance, which archaeologists say must be a continual process to fight off the ravages of heat, stagnant water, fungi and tree roots which attack and crumble the stones.

Sixteen foreign journalists, including eight Americans, saw the centuries-old edifices from a bus that moved along at about 50 miles an hour. They were not allowed to get out and visit the site on foot.

The 12th century temple of Angkor Wat, with its 54 towers, is located 140 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. It covers 60 square miles and is studded with more than 600 monuments.

Only after negotiations between the Thai organizers of the trip and the Cambodians were the journalists allowed 45 minutes to rush through Angkor Wat, regarded as the supreme achievement at Angkor and the largest standing religious building in the world.

The Cambodians said they had sent a message to the Erawan Trust Company last Sunday asking that the inaugural flight be made by Thais only as a symbol of friendship between the neighboring countries. They reportedly discussed security precautions, following the murder of British scholar, Dr. Malcolm Caldwell, in an attack by three terrorists in a government guesthouse in Phnom Penh last week.

The journalists were restricted to the terminal of the nearby Siem Reap Airport for three hours after their morning bus tour as the Thais negotiated with the Cambodians to grant the Angkor Wat visit.

Regular tours, open to all nationalities but South Africans, Israelis, South Koreans and Taiwanese, begin Jan. 1, with tourists paying $225 for six and a half hours of sightseeing at three temples and a lunch before flying back to Bangkok. One travel agent said that about 50,000 foreigners have already expressed interest in the trip.

There is little chance that visitors to Angkor will be able to peer through the veil of secrecy thrown around the country by its radical rulers when they seized power in 1975, and investigate repeated reports of mass executions and brutality.

Carter, Meany To Confer Jan. 12 For Private Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and AFL-CIO President George Meany will confer Jan. 12 at a meeting that could help patch up their rapidly deteriorating relationship or perhaps widen the rift.

Administration sources have confirmed that Meany, accompanied by six other AFL-CIO leaders, will sit down with Carter for what will be their first private meeting since August.

The meeting was arranged by Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, acting in the role of peacemaker by seeking to halt the bitter antagonism that has developed between the White House and the labor federation.

"We're trying to get people talking again," one administration official, who asked not to be identified, said Tuesday. "Symbolically, it's important to both sides for Meany to meet with the president."

But government officials acknowledged that based on past meetings between the two men, the session could prove counterproductive.

While the meeting is supposed to focus on Carter's new anti-inflation program, which Meany has assailed, other issues may come up. "When you're at the White House, you talk about whatever the president wants," said one labor official.

Examiner Says Crawl Space In Home Resembles 'Battle Scene'

By HOWARD ULMAN Associated Press Writer

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) —

A muddy, foul-smelling crawl space beneath the home of a man suspected of killing 32 youths is "like a battle scene in there with all the trenches dug. You're working right in the graves."

Dr. Robert Stein, Cook County medical examiner, said Tuesday night that in his 20 years as a forensic pathologist he has never come upon a more horrifying case.

"Before this is all over with, this could be one of the most heinous crimes of the century," said Stein, who has been crawling on his stomach underneath the house.

The skeletal remains of four full bodies and parts of a fifth were found in the crawl space Tuesday, bringing to eight the total found there since the search began Friday. A ninth body was found under a concrete garage floor last week. The search was to continue today.

John Wayne Gacy Jr., 36, a construction contractor who once served a prison term in Iowa for sodomy, reportedly told investigators he had sex with and then killed 32 boys and young men, burying 26 at his home and throwing six in the Des Plaines River.

He is being held without bond on a murder charge and is scheduled to appear in court Friday.

Gacy, who was twice divorced, had lived in the house for six years, the last two alone.

Stein said he is not close to identifying any of the victims and some may never be identified. "The teeth are excellent but we still have to have the dental reports to match them," he said.

Edmund Dobbs, chief of Cook County Sheriff's Police, said that "based on my information they're all young boys."

Lt. Joseph Kozenczak, who is heading the investigation

for Des Plaines police, said Frank Landin, 19, of Chicago, whose body was found Nov. 12 in the Des Plaines River southwest of Joliet, may have been one of Gacy's victims.

Kozenczak said Landin's naked body was found with bikini underwear stuffed in his mouth. He added that bodies found at Gacy's home also had underwear or cloth in their mouth when found.

"Here's a straightforward case, isn't it, for capital punishment, the electric chair," said Stein. "I'm a physician, hence I'm against the taking of any life, but here is a classic example for the electric chair."

"He claims, what, 32 bodies? I bet you money you're going to find that many."

Dobbs said about 20 men worked inside Gacy's home Tuesday. Some tore out flooring and dug through the crawl space. Technicians spread buckets of mud on the ground behind the home, looking for remains.

from a man traveling in a van, according to a nurse at Steven's Clinic in Welch. But Johnson said the man named in the warrant apparently is not the man in the van.

The sale of fireworks is illegal in West Virginia and Kentucky. Possession is legal in Kentucky, but not in West Virginia.

Stein said the excavation would proceed slowly because workers risk becoming sick from breathing methane, hydrogen sulfide and other gases released during the decomposition of human flesh.

Purchase Area Artists Are Being Surveyed By Mail

More than 700 individual artists have been identified in the Purchase Area and are currently being surveyed by mail.

The Kentucky Arts Commission and the Regional Arts Panel are asking artists to provide information about their current activities, barriers they are experiencing and programs they would like to see developed. Information collected will be used to allow the Purchase Area to develop the arts and to create more arts programs.

Talents of local artists include singers, weavers, painters, woodcarvers, potters, writers, dancers, actors, photographers, instrumentalists, ceramics and leathercrafts. Skills of these artists range from the professional who makes his living in the arts to the non-professional who enjoys his skill as a hobby.

Individual artists who have not received a questionnaire and would like to participate in the survey can contact the Regional Arts Panel at 247-7171, 753-8325 and 554-2097.

Adams Says Joint Effort May Be Required For Future Automobile

By HOWARD BENEDICT Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Time is running out on the internal combustion engine and a joint government-industry effort like that which sent men to the moon may be necessary to develop the automobile of the future, says Transportation Secretary Brock Adams.

And because of the deteriorating world petroleum situation, a replacement for conventional auto engines must be found within the next decade, Adams said in an interview.

"The motor vehicle is the prime mover of our society, and our mobility and much of our economy depend on a fragile alliance with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries," he said. "The recent OPEC price rise and events in Iran reinforce my belief that we must have a new type of propulsion unit."

"The government is going to have to be involved very heavily in the basic and advanced research because the automotive companies say they just do not have the resources or the inclination to get it into," he said.

It ought to be a cooperative effort, the secretary said, noting the automakers have 30,000 engineers and the Departments of Transportation and Energy together have invested $100 million in research on experimental vehicles.

"I don't want to get into a situation where we have a set of government engineers independently developing some great new thing, and then having the auto makers who have to commercialize it calling it the dumbest thing they ever heard of," Adams said.

"It's the same kind of thing we did when we said, 'okay, we'll put a man on the moon,'" he said. "We used a lot of different resources in the government and industry."

In a speech earlier this month in Detroit, Adams challenged the industry to "re-invent the car" in the next few years and invited auto company officials and engineers to a "summit" in Washington to hasten development of an energy-stretching, safe and people-pleasing autos.

Subsequently, Henry Ford, chairman of the Ford Motor Company, invited Adams to Detroit to inspect Ford's research labs and to discuss the technology involved, along with such things as "the reaction of consumers to smaller, lighter cars, the capital requirements of the technical task ahead and the over-all effects of what we do on employment levels and the general well-being of the economy."

Adams scolded U.S. automakers for being "imitators" instead of "innovators" and noted that the Transportation Department had to go abroad to buy the technology of a gasoline-efficient auto. "It's a Volkswagen Rabbit with a super-charged diesel. It gets 50 miles to the gallon and has full crash protection," he said. "It's a good automobile."

Police, Firemen Receive Layoff Slips In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) —

Police have received their notices and firemen get them today — 1,325 layoff slips that could bring this city's money problems home to hundreds.

Safety Director James Barrett distributed notices late Tuesday to 875 of the city's 1,875-member police force. He said 450 firefighters on the 1,002-member force would get the message today.

"It's like saying 'Happy New Year, here's your layoff,'" said officer Edward Pischel, a 16-year police veteran who escaped discharge while 23 of the 40 men on his shift were let go.

"There is no morale right now," said officer Jerry Kraiger. "Some of the men have mortgages of up to $300 a month. They've got to have food, electricity, gas, car payments. ... It makes you sick at heart."

A police union spokesman said the layoffs would be challenged in court Thursday, and John Gannon, president of International Association of Firefighters Local 93, said he will go to court as soon as the letters are delivered to firefighters.

"It's incredible the politicians would let this happen," he said.

Cleveland is in default on $15.5 million of short-term notes owed to banks and its own treasury. Mayor Dennis Kucinich says he will discharge 2,000 employees Jan. 2 if the city still is in default.

Kucinich called a special meeting of the City Council Tuesday to seek approval for a plan to pledge city payroll tax receipts and municipal property as loan collateral, but 17 members — including President George Forbes — boycotted it and there was not a quorum.

Rideout Claims Alleged Rape Was Violent Lover's Quarrel

By LINDA KRAMER Associated Press Writer

SALEM, Ore. (AP) —

It was a marital tiff punctuated by violence, ending when the couple kissed and made love, says John Rideout.

It was rape, says his 23-year-old wife, Greta.

The couple, in what is believed to be the first criminal prosecution of a husband on a charge of raping his wife, testified Tuesday before a Marion County Circuit Court jury — telling of events at their Salem apartment Oct. 10.

Closing arguments were scheduled for today. Defense attorney Charles Burt and District Attorney Gary Gortmaker rested their cases Tuesday, the fifth day of the trial.

Rideout, 21, told the four-man, eight-woman jury he slapped his wife after she kneed him in the groin during a fight over money, sex and the job he had quit six days before.

"I stopped myself because I realized I was really agitated. I hadn't ever hit my wife intentionally before," he said during his half-hour of testimony.

"I said, 'Greta, I'm sorry. I love you. And I didn't mean to do it.'"

Then, Rideout said, his 23-year-old wife told him it was all right, they made up, and had sexual intercourse.

But Greta Rideout, who has since filed for divorce, testified her husband repeatedly hit her in the face, pulled off her jeans and put his hands on her throat — forcing her to submit to intercourse.

"He slammed the door shut and locked it and he immediately grabbed me and threw me on the floor," Mrs. Rideout said during her two hours of testimony.

She said she could hear her 2½-year-old daughter crying "Mommy, Mommy."

After her husband hit her again, Mrs. Rideout said, she was afraid her jaw was broken, and "at that point I decided to submit to him."

"I just lay there and he wanted me to respond to him and I wouldn't," she testified, haltingly, wiping her eyes.

"My arms were at my side and I wouldn't put them around him."

In earlier testimony, a physician who examined Mrs. Rideout at a Salem hospital the night of Oct. 10 testified there was physical evidence of forced intercourse. Dr. Lewis Sayres said his diagnosis was possible rape.

Rideout is free on $5,000 bail. If convicted, he faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a fine of $2,500.

FEITELSON SHOW

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirteen paintings by Lorser Feitelson will be on display at the Whitney Museum of American Art through Feb. 11, 1979.

Murray State, 2-8, Eyeing Win Over Ga. Southern

By TONY WILSON
Sports Editor

GREENVILLE, S.C.—Few would wish an illness upon anyone, but the Murray State basketball team probably wouldn't mind if Georgia Southern Coach J. B. Searce's diagnosis is correct.

"We think he might have chicken pox," said Searce by phone. "But we're sure hoping he doesn't." Searce was speaking of freshman forward Matt Simpkins, the Eagles leading scorer with a 24 points-a-game average.

Simpkins and his teammates face the Racers in opening action of the Poinsettia Classic in Greenville Memorial Auditorium in an 8 p.m. (CST) game. Furman, 6-1 and the host and defending champion, takes on Yale in the first game at 6 p.m.

Georgia Southern pushed Furman into overtime in the tournament finals last year before losing 73-69. Furman has won its classic four times, the most of any team in the 19-year (tonight marks the 20th) history of the event.

"We have a lot of facts on Murray State, but not a lot of specifics," said Searce. "We will probably open in a man-to-man defense. That's what has worked for us so far."

It has worked well enough to earn the Eagles a 5-1 mark thus far. Victories have come over Georgia State, arch-rival Armstrong State, Austin Peay, Southern Alabama and North Carolina-Charlotte. Its lone loss came at the hands of UT-Chattanooga.

Offensively, we will be more disciplined than last year (the Eagles were 12-15 last season)," said Searce. When the running game isn't there, we'll work the ball more."

Murray State, 2-8, has dropped its last two games, including a 79-54 decision at Memphis State Saturday night.

Murray State Coach Ron Greene plans to start Tom Leffler, a 6-4 senior who scored four points and grabbed three rebounds in six minutes of play against Memphis State.

Leffler's starting marks the 12th player on the 14-member Racers roster who has started at least one game this season. Other probable Murray starters and their averages are John Randall, 10; Allen Mann, 6.5; Keith Oglesby, 11.4 and David Lowry, 3.6. Leffler averages 2.4 points a game.

"We feel like we need to be ready for a lot of different things against Murray," said Searce. Judging by past Racers games, Georgia Southern should be prepared to shoot free throws if it expects to win.

Murray State opponents have outscored the Racers by just four points from the field but have totaled 67 more points (125-58) from the free-throw line.

Tonight's two losers will fight for third place Thursday at 6 p.m. (CST) before the championship game at 8.

Murray and Georgia Southern have met twice before, with the Racers winning each contest. Murray opened its season in 1966 with a 121-65 thumping of the Eagles and defeated them 84-70 in 1968.

The game will be broadcast over WNBS Radio.

Illinois 6th In AP Poll

By the Associated Press

The University of Illinois might have won only two games in the past week, but those two victories over other ranked teams propelled the Fighting Illini from 15th to sixth place in the weekly Associated Press college basketball poll.

Duke remained on top, receiving 46 of 50 first-place votes, good for 996 points. Notre Dame held second place with 962 points, grabbing the other first place votes, and UCLA, an easy homecourt winner over Fordham and Boston College, held third with 878.

Michigan State, with 753 points, and North Carolina, with 744, both advanced one spot in the standings to fourth and fifth place, respectively.

The two teams had more in common than just their poll improvement over the past week. Both teams played only one game during the week and they both defeated Cincinnati by the same three point margin.

Lakers To Play In Holiday Event

The Calloway County boys basketball team will face South Hopkins in a 7 p.m. game in opening action of the Caldwell County Christmas Tournament in Princeton Thursday.

Caldwell County will take on University Heights in the second game, slated to begin at approximately 8:30 p.m.

The two losers will clash at 7 p.m. Friday, with the championship game to immediately follow.

The Lakers, 2-5, played well in their last outing—a 67-52 loss to a powerful Fulton County squad in the Calloway County Christmas Tournament Dec. 15. Fulton County went on to capture the title.

Ricky Garland (43) and Stan Rushing helped Calloway County put forth a strong effort in the Lakers last outing - a 67-52 loss to eventual champion Fulton County in the Calloway Christmas Tournament earlier this month. Calloway 2-5, faces South Hopkins in the first round of the Caldwell County Christmas Tournament in Princeton Thursday night.

Television's Business?

Not On Playing Field, Says One Writer

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Television's one-eyed monster has a tenacious curiosity and ears bigger than its orbit. So what was it doing on the sidelines at the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., on Christmas Day when UCLA and Arkansas played to a useless 10-10 tie?

With the live captive audience of millions looking and listening, there was this microphone stuck in the face of UCLA Coach Terry Donahue just as the Bruins intercepted an Arkansas pass.

Suddenly whistles blew and flags started dropping. The turnover was nullified by a penalty against UCLA.

Crackle, sizzle, pop.

Out of the young coach's mouth spontaneously came an epithet unfit for tender ears—especially on a quiet Christmas afternoon. The words are most often found on the walls of public latrines.

Oops! Certainly, Donahue was embarrassed, but he was caught off guard. He felt sorry afterward, but it was too late.

Across the field on the Arkansas side there was Lou Holtz, the Razorbacks' fiery coach, with an electronic device stuck to his chest.

"Sixty, wide to the left," he mumbled to one of his clefted messengers relaying plays from the bench to the huddle.

Up high in the press box, NBC announcer Curt Gowdy thumbed quickly through some pages.

"It's going to an option play to his left," Gowdy explained hurriedly. By that time, the Arkansas quarterback had already thrown an errant pass.

"One sixty-five, deep," said Holtz to one of his messengers. Gowdy rummaged through his papers.

"I can't find this one," he said frantically.

"That's okay, just wait for the next one," said his press box companion, John Brodie.

The bizarre sequence of these events raises the vital question: What should be the extent of electronic intrusion in big time sports?

Does TV, with its vast exposure and resources which subsidize most major events, have the right—denied other media—to go onto the playing field and probe into the most confidential areas of the participants?

Does the wiring of a coach or a player—as in the case of Holtz in the Fiesta Bowl—serve any useful purpose or add anything to the spectator's enjoyment of the game?

The embarrassment caused by Donahue's impulsive remark and the confusion of trying to tip the fans off to

Holtz' strategy in advance seem to dictate a definite "No."

Keep the big eye where it belongs—recording the event, not anticipating or judging it.

Vitale Blasts Team Effort After Bucks Humiliate Pistons

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Detroit's coach, Dick Vitale, sat calmly and controlled his temper as he watched the Milwaukee Bucks humiliate his Pistons 143-84.

But inside he was burning, and after the game it all came out.

"This was a disgrace to basketball," he said following Tuesday night's 59-point shellacking, which was just four points shy of the most lopsided result in the history of the National Basketball Association. Los Angeles beat Golden State 162-99 on March 19, 1972.

"There were little kids out there tonight who would have played NBA basketball for a dollar," said Vitale, his voice rising in anger and frustration. "Too many guys in this league don't want to play. They play on past credentials. It's a disgrace."

In other NBA games, the Houston Rockets beat the

Kansas City Kings 109-102, the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Atlanta Hawks 124-111, the Washington Bullets edged the Indiana Pacers 108-104, the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Denver Nuggets 106-102, the New Orleans Jazz nipped the Los Angeles Lakers 125-123 and the San Diego Clippers beat the Chicago Bulls 115-109.

Rockets 109, Kings 102. Moses Malone overpowered Kansas City with 32 points and 26 rebounds, the seventh straight game in which Malone has had at least 20 rebounds. He leads the NBA in that category with 16.6 per game.

Houston led 76-74 after three quarters but pulled away as Malone scored 14 points and grabbed seven rebounds in the final period.

Spurs 124, Hawks 111. San Antonio tied a club record with its eighth straight victory, pulling away from Atlanta with 12 points in a row during the second half.

Examiner Says Crawl Space In Home Resembles 'Battle Scene'

By HOWARD ULMAN

Associated Press Writer
DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) —

A muddy, foul-smelling crawl space beneath the home of a man suspected of killing 32 youths is "like a battle scene in there with all the trenches dug. You're working right in the graves."

Dr. Robert Stein, Cook County medical examiner, said Tuesday night that in his 20 years as a forensic pathologist he has never come upon a more horrifying case.

"Before this is all over with, this could be one of the most heinous crimes of the century," said Stein, who has been crawling on his stomach under the house.

The skeletal remains of four full bodies and parts of a fifth were found in the crawl space Tuesday, bringing to eight the total found there since the search began Friday. A ninth body was found under a concrete garage floor last week. The search was to continue today.

John Wayne Gacy Jr., 36, a construction contractor who once served a prison term in Iowa for sodomy, reportedly told investigators he had sex with and then killed 32 boys and young men, burying 26 at his home and throwing six in the Des Plaines River.

He is being held without bond on a murder charge and is scheduled to appear in court Friday.

Gacy, who was twice divorced, had lived in the house for six years, the last two alone.

Stein said he is not close to identifying any of the victims and some may never be identified. "The teeth are excellent but we still have to have the dental reports to match them," he said.

Edmund Dobbs, chief of Cook County Sheriff's Police, said that "based on my information they're all young boys."

Lt. Joseph Kozenczak, who is heading the investigation

for Des Plaines police, said Frank Landin, 19, of Chicago, whose body was found Nov. 12 in the Des Plaines River southwest of Joliet, may have been one of Gacy's victims.

Kozenczak said Landin's naked body was found with bikini underwear stuffed in his mouth. He added that bodies found at Gacy's home also had underwear or cloth in their mouth when found.

"Here's a straightforward case, isn't it, for capital punishment, the electric chair," said Stein. "I'm a physician, hence I'm against the taking of any life, but here is a classic example for the electric chair."

"He claims, what, 32 bodies? I bet you money you're going to find that many."

Dobbs said about 20 men worked inside Gacy's home Tuesday. Some tore out flooring and dug through the crawl space. Technicians spread buckets of mud on the ground behind the home, looking for remains.

Police Have Warrant For Bad Fireworks Supplier

WELCH, W.Va. (AP) —

State police have obtained a warrant for a man they believe was the primary supplier in the Welch area of the defective fireworks that caused numerous hand injuries Sunday and Monday.

"We're aiming at the primary bootlegger in this area," said Trooper W.A. Johnson of the Welch detachment, who refused to identify the man named in the warrant.

More than 150 people in southern West Virginia and eastern Kentucky were treated at hospitals after fireworks blew up in their hands. The fireworks, identified as m-80s, apparently had defective fuses and went off as soon as they were lit, authorities said.

Some of those hurt had to have fingers amputated. "Where the man we're looking for bought the fireworks from is a question we'll have to answer when we arrest him," Johnson said.

Residents of the Iaeger area of McDowell County reported they bought the fireworks from a man traveling in a van, according to a nurse at Steven's Clinic in Welch. But Johnson said the man named in the warrant apparently is not the man in the van.

The sale of fireworks is illegal in West Virginia and Kentucky. Possession is legal in Kentucky, but not in West Virginia.

Adams Says Joint Effort May Be Required For Future Automobile

By HOWARD BENEDICT

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Time is running out on the internal combustion engine and a joint government-industry effort like that which sent men to the moon may be necessary to develop the automobile of the future, says Transportation Secretary Brock Adams.

And because of the deteriorating world petroleum situation, a replacement for conventional auto engines must be found within the next decade, Adams said in an interview.

"The motor vehicle is the prime mover of our society, and our mobility and much of our economy depend on a fragile alliance with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries," he said. "The recent OPEC price rise and events in Iran reinforce my belief that we must have a new type of propulsion unit."

"The government is going to have to be involved very heavily in the basic and advanced research because the automotive companies say they just do not have the resources or the inclination to get into it," he said.

It ought to be a cooperative effort, the secretary said, noting the automakers have 30,000 engineers and the Departments of Transportation and Energy together have invested $100 million in research on experimental vehicles.

"I don't want to get into a situation where we have a set of government engineers independently developing some great new thing, and then having the auto makers who have to commercialize it calling it the dumbest thing they ever heard of," Adams said.

"It's the same kind of thing we did when we said, 'okay, we'll put a man on the moon,'" he said. "We used a lot of different resources in the government and industry."

In a speech earlier this month in Detroit, Adams challenged the industry to "re-invent the car" in the next few years and invited auto company officials and engineers to a "summit" in Washington to hasten development of an energy-stretching, safe and people-pleasing auto.

Subsequently, Henry Ford, chairman of the Ford Motor Company, invited Adams to Detroit to inspect Ford's research labs and to discuss the technology involved, along with such things as "the reaction of consumers to smaller, lighter cars, the capital requirements of the technical task ahead and the over-all effects of what we do on employment levels and the general well-being of the economy."

Adams scolded U.S. automakers for being "imitators" instead of "innovators" and noted that the Transportation Department had to go abroad to buy the technology of a gasoline-efficient auto. "It's a Volkswagen Rabbit with a super-charged diesel. It gets 50 miles to the gallon and has full crash protection," he said. "It's a good automobile."

Rideout Claims Alleged Rape Was Violent Lover's Quarrel

By LINDA KRAMER

Associated Press Writer
SALEM, Ore. (AP) — It was a marital tiff punctuated by violence, ending when the couple kissed and made love, says John Rideout.

It was rape, says his 23-year-old wife, Greta.

The couple, in what is believed to be the first criminal prosecution of a husband on a charge of raping his wife, testified Tuesday before a Marion County Circuit Court jury — telling of events at their Salem apartment Oct. 10.

Closing arguments were scheduled for today. Defense attorney Charles Burt and District Attorney Gary Gortmaker rested their cases Tuesday, the fifth day of the trial.

Rideout, 21, told the four-man, eight-woman jury he slapped his wife after she kneed him in the groin during a fight over money, sex and the job he had quit six days before.

"I stopped myself because I realized I was really agitated. I hadn't ever hit my wife intentionally before," he said during his half-hour of testimony.

"I said, 'Greta, I'm sorry. I love you. And I didn't mean to do it.'"

Then, Rideout said, his 23-year-old wife told him it was all right, they made up, and had sexual intercourse.

But Greta Rideout, who has since filed for divorce, testified her husband repeatedly hit her in the face, pulled off her jeans and put his hands on her throat — forcing her to submit to intercourse.

"He slammed the door shut and locked it and he immediately grabbed me and threw me on the floor," Mrs. Rideout said during her two hours of testimony.

She said she could hear their 2½-year-old daughter crying "Mommy, Mommy."

After her husband hit her again, Mrs. Rideout said, she was afraid her jaw was broken, and "at that point I decided to submit to him."

"I just lay there and he wanted me to respond to him and I wouldn't," she testified haltingly, wiping her eyes. "My arms were at my side and I wouldn't put them around him."

In earlier testimony, a physician who examined Mrs. Rideout at a Salem hospital the night of Oct. 10 testified there was physical evidence of forced intercourse. Dr. Lewis Sayres said his diagnosis was possible rape.

Rideout is free on $5,000 bail. If convicted, he faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a fine of $2,500.

FEITELSON SHOW

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirteen paintings by Lorser Feitelson will be on display at the Whitney Museum of American Art through Feb. 11, 1979.

Feitelson (1898-1978) held his first one-person show in 1924.

Patterson Sims, who organized the exhibit, says it "demonstrates the artist's development and the consistency of his involvement with pure line and color; it offers a long overdue opportunity for the New York public to view the range of his achievements."

Purchase Players To Sponsor Holiday Disco Dance

The Purchase Players, Mayfield's local theater group, and WYMC Radio are sponsoring a holiday disco at the American Legion in Mayfield from 8 p.m. to midnight Friday, Dec. 29.

The disco will help support the week-long visit of the Community Artist in Residence, a professional musical comedy vocalist whose name will soon be announced.

Sound Spectrum 361, equipped with fog machine, strobe lights and mirror ball, will provide will provide the music. A disco dance contest will be held.

Purchase Area Artists Are Being Surveyed By Mail

More than 700 individual artists have been identified in the Purchase Area and are currently being surveyed by mail.

The Kentucky Arts Commission and the Regional Arts Panel are asking artists to provide information about their current activities, barriers they are experiencing and programs they would like to see developed. Information collected will be used to allow the Purchase Area to develop the arts and to create more arts programs.

Talents of local artists include singers, weavers, painters, woodcarvers, potters, writers, dancers, actors, photographers, instrumentalists, ceramics and leathercrafts. Skills of these artists range from the professional who makes his living in the arts to the non-professional who enjoys his skill as a hobby.

Individual artists who have not received a questionnaire and would like to participate in the survey can contact the Regional Arts Panel at 247-7171, 753-8325 and 554-2097.

Murray State, 2-8, Eyeing Win Over Ga. Southern

By TONY WILSON
Sports Editor

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Few would wish an illness upon anyone, but the Murray State basketball team probably wouldn't mind if Georgia Southern Coach J. B. Searce's diagnosis is correct. "We think he might have chicken pox," said Searce by phone. "But we're sure hoping he doesn't." Searce was speaking of freshman forward forward Matt Simpkins, the Eagles leading scorer with a 24 points-a-game average.

Simpkins and his teammates face the Racers in opening action of the Pointsettia Classic in Greenville Memorial Auditorium in an 8 p.m. (CST) game. Furman, 6-1 and the host and defending champion, takes on Yale in the first game at 6 p.m.

Georgia Southern pushed Furman into overtime in the tournament finals last year before losing 73-69. Furman has won its classic four times, the most of any team in the 19-year (tonight marks the 20th) history of the event.

"We have a lot of facts on Murray State, but not a lot of specifics," said Searce. "We will probably open in a man-to-man defense. That's what has worked for us so far."

It has worked well enough to earn the Eagles a 5-1 mark thus far. Victories have come over Georgia State, arch-rival Armstrong State, Austin Peay, Southern Alabama and North Carolina-Charlotte. Its lone loss came at the hands of UT-Chattanooga.

Offensively, we will be more disciplined than last year (the Eagles were 12-15 last season), said Searce. When the running game isn't there,

we'll work the ball more."

Murray State, 2-8, has dropped its last two games, including a 79-54 decision at Memphis State Saturday night.

Murray State Coach Ron Greene plans to start Tom Leffler, a 6-4 senior who scored four points and grabbed three rebounds in six minutes of play against Memphis State.

"Leffler's starting marks the 12th player on the 14-member Racers roster who has started at least one game this season."

Other probable Murray starters and their averages are John Randall, 10; Allen Mann, 6.5; Keith Oglesby, 11.4 and David Lowry, 3.6. Leffler averages 2.4 points a game.

"We feel like we need to be ready for a lot of different things against Murray," said Searce. Judging by past Racers games, Georgia Southern should be prepared to shoot free throws if it expects to win.

Murray State opponents have outscored the Racers by just four points from the field but have totaled 67 more points (125-58) from the free-throw line.

Tonight's two losers will fight for third place Thursday at 6 p.m. (CST) before the championship game at 8.

Murray and Georgia Southern have met twice before, with the Racers winning each contest. Murray opened its season in 1966 with a 121-65 thumping of the Eagles and defeated them 84-70 in 1968.

The game will be broadcast over WYMC Radio.

Illinois 6th In AP Poll

By the Associated Press

The University of Illinois might have won only two games in the past week, but those two victories over other ranked teams propelled the Fighting Illini from 15th to sixth place in the weekly Associated Press college basketball poll.

Duke remained on top, receiving 46 of 50 first place votes, good for 996 points. Notre Dame held second place with 952 points, grabbing the other first place votes, and UCLA, an easy homecourt winner over Fordham and Boston College, held third with 878.

Michigan State, with 753 points, and North Carolina, with 744, both advanced one spot in the standings to fourth and fifth place, respectively.

The two teams had more in common than just their poll improvement over the past week. Both teams played only one game during the week and they both defeated Cincinnati by the same three point margin.

Lakers To Play In Holiday Event

The Calloway County boys basketball team will face South Hopkins in a 7 p.m. game in opening action of the Caldwell County Christmas Tournament in Princeton Thursday.

Caldwell County will take on University Heights in the second game, slated to begin at approximately 8:30 p.m.

The two losers will clash at 7 p.m. Friday, with the championship game to immediately follow.

The Lakers, 2-5, played well in their last outing — a 67-52 loss to a powerful Fulton County squad in the Calloway County Christmas Tournament Dec. 15. Fulton County went on to capture the title.

Television's Business?

Not On Playing Field, Says One Writer

By WIL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Television's one-eyed monster has a tenacious curiosity and ears bigger than its orbit. So what was it doing on the sidelines at the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe Ariz., on Christmas Day when UCLA and Arkansas played to a useless 10-10 tie?

With the live captive audience of millions looking and listening, there was this microphone stuck in the face of UCLA Coach Terry Donahue just as the Bruins intercepted an Arkansas pass.

Suddenly whistles blew and flags started dropping. The turnover was nullified by a penalty against UCLA.

Crackle, sizzle, pop.

Out of the young coach's mouth spontaneously came an epithet unfit for tender ears — especially on a quiet Christmas afternoon. The words are most often found on the walls of public latrines.

Oops! Certainly, Donahue was embarrassed, but he was caught off guard. He felt sorry afterward, but it was too late.

Across the field on the Arkansas side there was Lou Holtz, the Razorbacks' fiery coach, with an electronic device stuck to his chest.

"Sixty, wide to the left," he mumbled to one of his creaked messengers relaying plays from the bench to the huddle.

Up high in the press box, NBC announcer Curt Gowdy thumbed quickly through some pages.

"It's going to an option play to his left," Gowdy explained hurriedly. By that time, the Arkansas quarterback had already thrown an errant pass.

"One sixty-five, deep," said Holtz to one of his messengers. Gowdy rummaged through his papers.

"I can't find this one," he said frantically.

"That's okay, just wait for the next one," said his press box companion, John Brodie.

The bizarre sequence of these events raises the vital question: What should be the extent of electronic intrusion in big time sports?

Does TV, with its vast exposure and resources which subsidize most major events, have the right — denied other media — to go onto the playing field and probe into the most confidential areas of the participants?

Does the wiring of a coach or a player — as in the case of Holtz in the Fiesta Bowl — serve any useful purpose or add anything to the spectator's enjoyment of the game?

The embarrassment caused by Donahue's impulsive remark and the confusion of trying to tip the fans off to

Holtz' strategy in advance seem to dictate a definite "No."

Keep the big eye where it belongs — recording the event, not anticipating or judging it.

Vitale Blasts Team Effort After Bucks Humiliate Pistons

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Detroit's coach, Dick Vitale, sat calmly and controlled his temper as he watched the Milwaukee Bucks humiliate his Pistons 143-84.

But inside he was burning, and after the game it all came out.

"This was a disgrace to basketball," he said following Tuesday night's 59-point shellacking, which was just four points shy of the most lopsided result in the history of the National Basketball Association. Los Angeles beat Golden State 162-99 on March 19, 1972.

"There were little kids out there tonight who would have played NBA basketball for a dollar," said Vitale, his voice rising in anger and frustration. "Too many guys in this league don't want to play. They play on past credentials. It's a disgrace."

In other NBA games, the Houston Rockets beat the

Kansas City Kings 109-102, the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Atlanta Hawks 124-111, the Washington Bullets edged the Indiana Pacers 108-104, the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Denver Nuggets 106-102, the New Orleans Jazz nipped the Los Angeles Lakers 125-123 and the San Diego Clippers beat the Chicago Bulls 115-109.

Rockets 109, Kings 102. Moses Malone overpowered Kansas City with 32 points and 26 rebounds, the seventh straight game in which Malone has had at least 20 rebounds. He leads the NBA in that category with 16.6 per game.

Houston led 76-74 after three quarters but pulled away as Malone scored 14 points and grabbed seven rebounds in the final period.

Spurs 124, Hawks 111.

San Antonio tied a club record with its eighth straight victory, pulling away from Atlanta with 12 points in a row during the second half.

The Playoffs

Patriots Wary Of Houston In AFC Semifinals

By the Associated Press
FOXBORO, Mass. — The New England Patriots hope they haven't drawn a joker from the wild card ranks.

No doubt about it, the National Football League team would rather be playing Denver here Sunday instead of sizzling hot Houston in the American Conference semifinals.

The Oilers are much tougher to defense than Denver, Patriots defensive captain Steve Nelson, the star linebacker, said Tuesday.

The Patriots, AFC East champions, would have played the Broncos if Miami had beaten Houston last weekend. Instead, the Oilers — with NFL rushing champion Earl Campbell and quarterback Dan Pastorini — are coming to town.

Houston, a wild card entry in the playoffs, was in Foxboro earlier this year. The Patriots took a 23-0 lead, then lost 26-23 on Nov. 12. In that game, the Oilers' ball control offense, led by rookie sensation Campbell, kept New England's defense on the field for about two-thirds of the second half.

As if the Patriots don't have enough worries, there's still the residue of last week's turmoil — with Coach Chuck Fairbanks an apparent lame duck as he plots a future move to new coaching chores at the University of Colorado.

Fairbanks was suspended by the team for accepting the post, then reinstated by owner William H. Sullivan Jr. when the coach told Colorado he was temporarily unavailable. Fairbanks also was unavailable to reporters Tuesday simply because, a team spokesman said, "of the press of time."

Several Patriots players, however, looked ahead to the playoff matchup.

"I don't think we'll have any problems playing our best game of the season," said quarterback Steve Grogan. "The playoffs mean too much to all of us not to play our best."

Linebacker Steve Zabel said New England's challenge is to stop Campbell on first down situations in which the bruiser has piled up several hundred yards.

But the Patriots also must adjust to the prospect of fake handoffs to Campbell, with Pastorini tossing play-action passes that burned the Dolphins in the opening round of the playoffs.

"The first down is critical," said Zabel. "And we have to pressure Pastorini. We'll find out if he's really hurt."

The Houston quarterback with the injured ribs plays in a special flak jacket undershirt that apparently protects him against everything, from speeding bullets to 275-pound defenders.

The game Sunday ends a two-week Patriots layoff. Their last outing was the regular season wrapup, a 23-3 loss in Miami hours after Sullivan kicked Fairbanks out of the Patriots' locker room.

Other tourneys opening today include the All-College at Oklahoma City; the Senior Bowl at Mobile, Ala., and the Poinsettia Classic at Greenville, N.C.

The first round of the Sun Carnival tourney at El Paso, Tex., involving eighth-ranked Michigan, will be played Thursday night. The Wolverines will take on Texas Tech, while Clemson meets Texas-El Paso.

Illinois, the nation's No. 6 team, plays Western Michigan and Alaska-Anchorage takes on College of the Ozarks in the first round of the Glacier Bowl tourney at Anchorage Thursday night. In the Louisville Holiday tournament, it's No. 10 Louisville meeting Wisconsin and Mississippi State against Oral Roberts.

The Vermont Classic features No. 12 Texas A&M against Air Force, and No. 4 Michigan State will be featured in the completion of the first round of the Far West Classic.

On Friday night, fifth-ranked North Carolina will see tournament action, playing a first-round game in the Rochester (N.Y.) Classic against Dartmouth.

In action Tuesday night, the Gator Bowl tourney in Jacksonville, Fla., got a jump on the rest of the country. In the first round, Malcolm Cesare scored 22 points to lead Florida over Massachusetts 89-65 and Jacksonville beat Pitt 74-72 as Dwayne Smith and Paul DeVito combined for 35.

Elsewhere, John Stroud scored 41 points to lead Mississippi over Memphis State 92-89; Mike Helms collected 19 to power Wake Forest over North Carolina-Asheville 91-70; Cliff Robinson scored 22 points and grabbed nine rebounds to lead Southern Cal over California 59-54 and Johnny High and Mike Gray combined for 37 points to pace Nevada-Reno over San Jose State 75-57.

that includes No. 7 Louisville Mercy Academy, No. 8 Covington Holy Cross, No. 9 Fort Knox and No. 10 Louisville Butler.

Mercy and Holy Cross were tied for seventh last week, but the Covington unit dropped a 47-45 decision to Trimble County and consequently slid in the ratings.

Fort Knox and Butler traded positions from last week as Butler, 3-4, lost a game to become the only rated team playing below .500.

Laurel County No. 1 In Girls' Prep Poll

By the Associated Press
LOUISVILLE — Laurel County and Paris continue to set the pace in the weekly Kentucky girls high school basketball poll, but Lexington Lafayette is slowly moving into position to challenge for the top spot.

In voting Monday, defending state champion Laurel County was the unanimous choice of voters for the third consecutive week, receiving all 10 votes for 100 total points.

Paris held second place with 85 votes and Lafayette, which was fourth last week, advanced a notch to third with 72 votes. Coach Cathy Neal's Generals won two games last week, running this season's string to 11 wins without a loss.

Last week's third place team, Louisville Assumption at 8-0, slipped to fourth with 63 points and Russell at 6-2 rounded out the top five with 57 points.

Allen County, 5-1 with 42 points, leads the second five that includes No. 7 Louisville Mercy Academy, No. 8 Covington Holy Cross, No. 9 Fort Knox and No. 10 Louisville Butler.

Lance, Farmer 'Most Improved'

They may not be the best, but they are the most improved — at least, that's what Tennis Magazine said in its January, 1979, issue.

Vicki Lance and Mansfield Farmer were recognized as the two tennis players most improved in Murray in 1978 by the magazine. The pair were presented certificates by Murray State men's tennis coach and teaching professional Bennie Purcell in a recent ceremony.

The magazine recognizes each year the most improved players at clubs around the country. Teaching pros choose the men and women players they think have shown the most progress during the year.

Landry Hopes Experience Tops Falcons In NFC

By the Associated Press
DALLAS — Tom Landry can laugh and joke now during the pressure-cooker of the National Football League playoffs.

Before the Cowboys captured their first NFL title in the early 1970s this was not always the case. But, the Dallas Cowboys coach says, experience relieves a lot of playoff tension.

For example, before his weekly news conference Tuesday, Landry said: "I hope you had as nice and as busy a Christmas as I did. I'd like to take this opportunity to wish everyone a Happy New Year. Now, I'll open it up for questions."

One question zeroed in on the Cowboys' playoff experience. Dallas has been in more NFL playoff games (22) than any other team. Of course, Landry has been the coach for each one. His record 13-9.

"Experience is important," said Landry. "Experience pays off in pressure circumstances. It helps you from getting carried away. It's to your advantage."

Someone asked Landry how he felt about playoff games.

"I'm a little more relaxed myself in playoff games," he answered with a smile.

This will be a busy week for Landry. Besides preparing for Saturday's National Conference semifinal playoff game against Atlanta, Landry will be inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame Friday.

Landry was a former star at the University of Texas and for the New York Giants in the NFL.

"It's nice for something like this to happen to you while you're still young enough to enjoy it," Landry said of the honor.

Turning his attention back to the Falcons, Landry said something was amiss with the Cowboys being 14-point favorites.

"Something is wrong because anytime you play in the playoffs you will have a tight football game in most cases," said Landry. "It takes something unusual for the game to get out of hand."

Landry said possible overconfidence by the NFC Eastern Division champions "worries you."

He said Atlanta shows a "lot of enthusiasm. Their morale has to be high for them to win those close games like they have. They have shown they are capable of pulling out those tight games."

Buckeyes' Hayes Brings Officials

By the Associated Press
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Coach Woody Hayes brought his own officials along to the Ohio State Buckeyes' Gator Bowl football game against Clemson.

Of course, the men in the striped shirts that came with the Buckeyes won't officiate Friday night's game. They are Ohio high school officials and are working Ohio State practice sessions.

Hayes said it is something he has done before and it helps cut down on game penalties by reminding the players in practice sessions what they can't do.

Husband Charged With Raping Wife

Notion As Old As Bible Being Challenged In Oregon Case

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — A notion as old as the Bible is being challenged in an Oregon courtroom where a husband is on trial charged with raping his wife.

For generations marriage has been viewed as consent to sex between the spouses and marital privilege was a defense against rape.

In 1977 Oregon legislators passed a law removing marriage or voluntary cohabitation as a defense against rape. Supporters of the bill called it "simple justice."

"We were saying the marriage contract does not demand you to submit just because you are married," says state Sen. Edward Fadeley of Eugene. "The guarantee of sexual access in both directions — to men and women — is written in the Old Testament. And this law does indeed change that."

It is unlikely that when Oregon lawmakers deleted the phrase "not married to" from the state rape statutes they anticipated the national attention generated by the trial of John Rideout.

Rideout, 21, went on trial in Marion County Circuit Court last Tuesday on a felony charge of raping his wife, Greta, 23. She claims he beat her and forced her to have sex last Oct. 10 while they were living together in a Salem apartment.

The trial, which resumes today, is believed to be the first criminal prosecution of a husband charged with raping his wife while they lived together.

Delaware and Iowa allow prosecution of husband-wife rape cases and a spousal rape law takes effect Jan. 1 in New Jersey, but it is not believed any cases have been tried under those laws.

Rideout's attorneys have maintained that marital privilege is a defense against rape under common law despite the 1977 legislation and they have challenged the constitutionality of the law.

They filed a pretrial objection, overruled by the judge, claiming that Oregon's rape law is unconstitutional because it violates a married couple's right to privacy. In addition, the defense says the law violates equal protection because it applies only to one sex.

Before the Oregon law took effect on Oct. 4, 1977, a man couldn't be prosecuted in the state for raping a woman to whom he was married unless they were legally separated. A man also couldn't be prosecuted for rape if the couple was unmarried and living together.

"It's almost just a simple justice type thing," says state Rep. Gretchen Kafoury of Portland, co-sponsor of the law. "I think the bill passed as easily as it did because legislators knew a married woman didn't have as much recourse to physical assault by her husband as a woman assaulted on the street."

She said a 1975 attempt to get the law on marital rape changed fizzled before the bill even got to the floor. She said women's rights groups decided to approach the 1977 Legislature more cautiously by introducing a bill to allow rape prosecutions when married couples were living apart or unmarried couples were living together.

However, the Senate Judiciary Committee decided to go a step further by amending the bill to allow rape prosecutions regardless of marital status.

"It seems to me that if it is wrong to rape your spouse, a spouse you are living separate from, it is equally wrong to rape a spouse you are living with," state Sen. Stephen Kafoury — ex-husband of Rep. Kafoury — said during the bill's original passage.

Several of the bill's original sponsors voted against it because of the change. "When they did that, it allowed a husband to be charged with raping his wife while they lived together and I opposed the bill," says Sen. Vern Cook of Gresham, a sponsor who changed his stance.

"We don't need another law to make assault and battery a crime. They're confusing assault and battery with rape," says Cook.

The new law was part of a women's rights package that included a program for victims of wife-beating. The rape bill passed the state Senate 24-4 and the House, 40-16.

Cook, a legislator for 20 years, says, "I believe there is a U.S. Supreme Court case, involving sodomy, where what one does in one's bedroom is privileged."

Fadeley says, "Marriage is something the government has always been involved in. My concern is that it will be used as a blackmail tool in a situation where a husband and wife were fighting with each other."

Testimony presented during the Legislature's consideration of the rape bill claimed that battered women rarely file or pursue criminal charges against their husbands. The Women's Rights Coalition argued that the same would probably be true in rape cases.

"Because a few vindictive women may file false charges is not an adequate reason for denying other women this right," the women's group testified.

Rep. Kafoury says district attorneys had warned the lawmakers that it would be difficult to prosecute a husband-wife rape case and she personally was surprised by the Rideout trial.

"I thought it would be a long time before people would be willing to do it," she says. "I thought someone might consult an attorney, but would decide it's not worth the trauma and risk."

Tom Rush Says He's Not Household Name

By GREG MCGARRY
Associated Press Writer
SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Rush, who has had several successful albums in the past decade, concedes he's still not a household name. But it doesn't bother him. He says he'd rather raise bees on his 600-acre farm in New Hampshire than be a star.

In a recent interview after a concert here, the affable folksinger said his decision to leave New York City several years ago had been a turning point in his life and career.

"I am unwilling to make certain lifestyle compromises that would undoubtedly help a career," he said. "I am unwilling to live in Los Angeles or New York, for example, and I'm certain I pay a price for getting that. But we're happy in New Hampshire, which as you know is not the center of the entertainment industry."

"Part of what I gave up when I left New York was being 'ON THE SCENE' in capital letters," he continued. "And I realize (I did the right thing) every time I go to New York and I see people in the business running to go to a club to see another act, meeting more people that have this or that for me to do — a benefit or play on somebody's record and so forth and so on — something that's useful in terms of developing a career but it was just a game that I wasn't very good at."

Yet Rush, who began his career in Cambridge coffee-houses while attending Harvard in the 1960s, is still a popular warmup act on the concert scene. Last year, he made 135 appearances. He performed recently at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center here.

Rush, who was raised in New Hampshire, says he plans to cut back on his concerts so he can spend more time with his wife and 3-year-old son and "being a farmer."

Actually, his farming consists of renting out pasture land to a nearby farmer, tending to a vegetable garden, and raising bees.

"My son, Benjamin, is getting to the age where he needs some sort of stability, some sort of pattern. Having daddy go off at all hours of the day and night — I think it's disruptive to him. So I plan to travel less and probably spend more time writing and recording."

But he says he'll probably continue to hope for that elusive hit.

"Again," he says, "It's a question of how much you want it and what you want to do to get it. I'm interested in making music that pleases me and pleases the people whose opinions I respect. And if I can do that and have a hit, that's wonderful; but I can't see doing something tacky just for the sake of selling records."

English Porcelain Buys Found In Seconds Shops

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer

WORCESTER, England (AP) — The two jeans-clad young women with backpacks were surrounded by thousands of plates, bowls, cups and saucers as they carefully tallied up the English porcelain in their shopping baskets.

Mary Baker, 24, of New York City, and her 25-year-old roommate, Jackie Adams, said one of the main reasons they had come to England this year was to buy six five-piece place settings of English china tableware, a piece in a "seconds shop" of a major porcelain factory.

"We're tired of plastic," Miss Baker said emphatically. "We aren't about to wait around until we get married — if we do — to have nice dishes. We make decent money and like nice things for the apartment. The price is just going to go up and we figured we might as well make the investment now as later."

The two secretaries said they had saved enough money on cheap standby trans-Atlantic air fares to travel 120 miles north by train from London to the Royal Worcester Spode porcelain factory, one of England's oldest china producers and a mecca for thousands of tourists who come each year looking for cheaper prices than they can find back home.

The seconds shops at Royal Worcester and other English china factories are outlets for the factory's slightly damaged pieces and are reduced from the full retail price.

With the U.S. dollar's value shrinking abroad, English china imported into America is becoming more expensive. The two tourists said that even after their six "seconds" place settings were shipped home via surface mail, they will still have saved half the cost of a "perfect" set of identical patterned dishes which would cost about $220 in New York.

Miss Adams and Miss Baker agreed that many young career women would rather skimp elsewhere in order to set up housekeeping on their own with pretty, eye-catching dishes.

"They may be more expensive, but they ought to last a lot longer and in another sense they are a sort of security to an unattached woman," said Miss Adams. "It's like saying 'Look what I can provide for myself.'"

Little Girl Slowly Overcoming Her Past

REISTERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Patty Saunders stands a little over 4-feet tall, weighs 67 pounds, enjoys music and "is always dancing and singing." She rarely talks about the past.

That's a drastic change from July, 1976. Then, at age 8, Patty was taken from her home by police — weighing 23 pounds, standing 2-feet-10 inches. Her first words to officers were, "I'm hungry."

Police found her locked in a closet, starving and covered with filth. Her body bore the scars of burns and beatings.

She was placed in the custody of the Baltimore County social services agency, which arranged foster parents for her.

"Patty's with a family that loves her," said Elizabeth Parvis, a supervisor for the social services agency. Her mother, Linda Faye Burchfield, 30, is serving a 32-year prison term for child abuse. The stepfather, Billy Floyd Burchfield, 38, is serving 40 years. Each was convicted in May 1977 — three months after Patty moved in with her foster parents.

At first, doctors at a local hospital were not sure Patty would recover. The child, however, is approaching normalcy in physical, social and mental growth.

"Those people (foster parents) deserve all the credit in the world," Mrs. Parvis said.

The foster parents, who asked not to be identified, said when Patty arrived at their home, she was 39 inches tall and weighed 42 pounds. She could not read or write and walked with a limp because of a broken leg which had never been set properly.

The leg has since been set and Patty now has a special staircase on which to exercise.

Since she started school, she has progressed to just under a third grade level, according to her foster mother.

"She's really done well in school. On her first day in her new school, she brought home a reading book and read me the first story in it. She knows how to print and write and also does math."

Small Business Aids Are Available At Local Library

FRANKFORT — Thinking about starting a small business? Having a hard time getting the one you already own on its feet? Then it's time to check into a collection of aids designed specifically for the small business in mind — they're available through your local public library.

The collection of brochures and aids was given to the Kentucky Department of Library and Archives by the Small Business Administration last year, according to Barbara Williams, state librarian. "The purpose of their giving the collection to the library was to make the aids more readily available and accessible to persons starting or owning a small business in towns and counties. It puts the ideas where they can be utilized."

Mrs. Williams said that a collection of 170 brochures and booklets was provided for each of the 18 regional library headquarters and two collections for the state library. Each collection consists of a series of three types of guides: small business aids, technical aids and management aids. The brochures are available to all libraries in the state through interlibrary loan.

The regional libraries are located in Columbia, Covington, Elizabethtown, Eminence, Flemingsburg, Frankfort, Harlan, Louisville, Morehead, Murray, Nicholasville, Owensboro, Prestonsburg, Princeton, Russellville, and Whitesburg.

James A. Beazley, public affairs officer with the Louisville field office of the Small Business Administration, stressed that all of the aids relate to basic concepts — a good starting point for anyone wanting to open a business or trying to bolster a weak operation. "The aids cover a wide range of situations. For those persons just starting a business, there's an information aid that can be used for setting up an organization. For those already in business, there are aids such as marketing surveys, basics of record keeping and six methods for success in a small store."

Beazley explained, "A couple of examples of the brochures are two small marketers aids, 'Checklists for Going into Business' and 'Business Plan for Retailers.' Both would make a beginning business person stop and take stock of conditions and prospects for a successful business."

The checklists ask questions to help a person think through what he or she needs to know and do. Are you the kind of person who can start a business and make a go of it? What are the reasons you want to own your own business? Do you know how much money you'll need to get started? Where is the money coming from?

The business plan is a guideline — it gives a person who is planning to open a business a path to follow, and contains some examples and suggestions.

"This is just a sample of what the collection has to offer," added Beazley. "The collection also has a good index of publications about the basic elements of management. And, many other things are reviewed in these small business brochures, such as basic record keeping, sales, and marketing."

The small business administration also provides a management counseling group called Service Corps of Retired Executives. There are six SCORE chapters in Kentucky: Louisville, Lexington, Covington, Owensboro, Bowling Green, and Paducah. According to Beazley, the SCORE chapters can advise persons interested in starting a small business.

Anyone needing more details can get in touch with the area SCORE chapter. If they can't reach the local office, they should contact the SBA office in Louisville. The address is: 188 Federal Office Building, 600 Federal Place, Louisville, Ky. 40202.

SCHOLAR PICKED

WASHINGTON (AP) — George H. Hamilton, a noted scholar of 19th and 20th century European and American art, has been named the National Gallery of Art's Samuel H. Kress Professor in Residence for the academic year 1978-79.

Hamilton is currently working on a redefinition of the later style of the French artist Paul Cezanne and on Cezanne's writings, as well as on the late work of French Impressionist Claude Monet.

KET To Offer Five Telecourses

KET will air five new telecourses beginning in January and February. A telecourse is a college course for which many people can receive college credit by viewing programs shown on KET and by meeting other requirements set out by participating Kentucky colleges and universities.

The five series spotlight a broad range of topics — from Shakespearean dramas to home interior design.

"Of Earth and Man" combines art, film, photography and narration to increase the student's awareness of basic geographic concepts as they apply to different regions of the globe. The series is seen on Sundays at 2:30 p.m. (ET),

1:30 p.m. (CT) and at 3 p.m. (ET), 2 p.m. (CT) beginning January 21. Repeats of the twice-a-week programs are on Saturdays at 12 noon (ET), 11 a.m. (CT) and 12:30 p.m. (ET), 11:30 a.m. (CT).

"Writing for a Reason" is a college freshman composition course that covers basic writing skills such as choosing and shaping a thesis; planning a composition; and composing effective sentences, paragraphs and essays. Programs in the series are seen twice each week — Mondays and Wednesdays at 6:30 p.m. (ET), 5:30 p.m. (CT) beginning January 22, and are repeated on Saturdays at 4 p.m. (ET), 3 p.m. (CT) and 4:30 p.m. (ET), 3:30 p.m. (CT).

The entire interior design process is covered in "Designing Home Interiors." The series begins with the concept of total planning and progresses to elements and principles of design, floor plans, color psychology, floor coverings, and the successful use of accessories. Budget and consumer information are emphasized. The series begins on Sunday, January 21 at 1:30 p.m. (ET), 12:30 p.m. (CT) and at 2 p.m. (ET), 1 p.m. (CT). Repeats are seen on Saturday at 3 p.m. (ET), 2 p.m. (CT) and 3:30 p.m. (ET), 2:30 p.m. (CT).

"New Approaches to High School Learning and Discipline" is designed to present to participants a survey of contemporary thought and practice on improving student-teacher relations. The series is seen on Sundays at 1 p.m. (ET), 12 noon (CT) beginning January 21 and is repeated on Saturdays at 2:30 p.m. (ET), 1:30 p.m. (CT).

Six of William Shakespeare's plays come to television when "The Shakespeare Plays" airs on Wednesdays at 8 p.m. (ET), 7 p.m. (CT) beginning February 14. Among the full length presentations are "Julius Caesar," "As You Like It" and "Henry VIII." Information concerning which Kentucky colleges and universities are offering credit for the telecourses and how to enroll may be obtained by calling collect: Dr. Robert Carter, Council on Higher Education, at (502) 564-5463.
